ROOSEVELT'S ILLNESS GROWS MORE SEVERE

Could Scarcely Speak After Passing a Bad Night— Taken to Physician's Office For a Thorough Examination.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—The condition of Colonel Roosevelt was considerably worse today. He had a bad night last night, coughing a great deal, and this morning could hardly speak above a whisper.

The colonel spent the night at the Hotel Langdon where he has been since he was taken ill several days ago. The first thing this morning Mrs. Roosevelt notified the hotel authorities that the colonel was too ill to see anyone and that no one was to be allowed to go to his apartment.

Then she called Dr. Hubert V. Gulle. He reached the hotel in thirty minutes and went to the colonel's room. Shortly afterward he came down with the colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt. The colonel walked between the two and looked thoroughly ill.

"Boys, I have nothing to say," he said to the waiting newspapermen as he saw them near the elevator.

"How do you feel?" some one asked him.

The colonel merely waved his hand.

At the door of the hotel the doctor's automobile was waiting. The three got into the car. As the colonel sat down, he pressed his hand to his left side as if in pain, and kept it there while they drove away.

They went to Dr. Gulle's office, where a thorough examination was made.

HOPEFUL SUFFRAGETTES.

They Thank Various Statesmen and See Good Times Coming.

The Woman's Suffrage Party of Ulster County in session at the Wiltwyck Inn hall on Thursday passed resolutions commending the Republican national convention for its action in Chicago last week toward the party and a telegram signed by Mrs. C. B. O'Reilly, Mrs. William Simmons and Mrs. Van Anden was sent to the Ulster county delegates now at the Democratic national convention urging them to insert a plank for suffrage in the Democratic platform. Resolutions were also passed thanking Senator Walton and Senator LeFever for their activities.

Mrs. Simmons at the morning session opened the convention and then turned it over to Mrs. Gordon Norrie after the delegates had been welcomed by Mrs. Simmons. Mrs. Norrie spoke of the work for the coming campaign, and speaking of the defeat of the party last fall said:

"At no time have our prospects been so encouraging. Technically, we were defeated last autumn. But it was a defeat which was a prophecy of victory. The legislature, by an overwhelming majority, voted to re-submit. The Republican party, assembled in Chicago last week, endorsed suffrage in a phrase which asserted the justice of our cause. Herbert Parsons, who is a strong suffragist, has taken Mr. Barnes' place as national committeeman for this state.

"It is practically certain that the Democratic convention will do as much for us.

"Our own workers, most of whom were quite untrained last year, now have experience to help and encourage them, as well as the knowledge of our strength. A little more patience and persistence, a little more work, and we shall be able to return to the other caucus we have heard of, knowing that we can carry them to successful conclusions by a simpler, easier, more effective method than has ever been ours before."

Mrs. Ben C. Taylor of Ellenville was made recording secretary and during the session several of the local suffragette leaders spoke. Mrs. M. J. Michael talked for a short time but the principal talk was by Mrs. Norman E. R. Whitehouse, who visited the convention and gave a lengthy talk upon suffrage. Mrs. M. B. Morgan, one of the state representatives, also spoke at the morning session.

Next Tuesday evening, June 27, a reception will be held in the parlors of the Wayside Inn at Ellenville. When Mr. and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw will talk on the political emancipation of women, its benefits and the obstacles to be overcome. The business of this occasion will be Mrs. Ben Taylor, Mrs. B. C. Eaton, Mrs. Helen B. Holman, Mrs. A. H. Hoenbeck, Mrs. Henry Horton, Mrs. O. O. Kraus and Mrs. J. C. Ewing, all of Ellenville.

Poor Supts. to Plattsburg Too.

The Association of County Superintendents of the Poor now in annual conference at Poughkeepsie voted to meet next June in Plattsburg. The successful operation of the widow's pension law was the subject of papers by several speakers Thursday, the day concluding with a visit to West Point.

FINEGAN HEADS S. S. ASSOCIATION

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, deputy commissioner of education, of Albany, was elected president of the New York State Sunday School Association at the sixty-first annual session at Albany Wednesday night. He succeeds Courtney C. Avery of Auburn, who was elected vice president to succeed S. L. Strivings of Castile. Charles E. Patterson of Schenectady and Frank S. Boynton were re-elected vice presidents of the association, and Frank L. Brown of Brooklyn was elected an honorary life member of the executive committee.

Trustees of the association who were also elected Wednesday night are: Rev. Dr. A. F. Schaffner of New York city, first district, re-elected, and William W. Hall of New York city, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Stephen Baker of New York city, whose term expires in 1918; Frank L. Brown of Brooklyn, second district, re-elected; J. Spencer Horstford of Kinderhook, third district, re-elected; Rev. W. H. Shaw of Utica, fifth district, re-elected.

Members of the executive committee from the third district are the Rev. S. T. Clifton of Coxsack and the Rev. G. D. Merry of New Baltimore, alternate; the Rev. G. T. Lemmon of Sand Lake, with Charles S. Slicer of Troy, alternate; the Rev. W. H. Pritchard of White Lake.

Governor Made Address.

Governor Whitman made an address before the convention which was received with great enthusiasm. He took for his theme preparedness in times of peace as well as war, and the part each individual citizen must play in this greater preparedness. He was loudly applauded when he declared that if politics is a "dirty game," the fundamental fault lies with the electorate.

"You can always get the kind of candidates the people want," he said, "if the people want them; we have had an illustration of that during the past week."

"Bad habits," said the governor, "are not smart, but merely silly."

Syracuse Next Convention City.

At the closing session of the convention Thursday night, Syracuse was selected as the place for holding the next annual convention. The convention at Albany broke the record in the number of delegates in attendance. The enrollment was 1,906, which was 400 more than that at Auburn a year ago, and the Auburn convention was found to have the largest enrollment in the history of the association up to that time. The receipts of the Albany convention were $2,500, in addition to $1,500 which was subscribed for supervisor for the secondary adult work.

Preparedness Popular.

"Preparedness" was the subject of the closing address which was delivered Thursday night by the Rev. A. W. Beaven of Rochester, and he challenged those who had attended the sessions to translate the theme of the convention, "Service," into everyday life, and especially into the crisis which now faces America.

Enthusiasm along the general line of preparedness—as taught by the Sunday school was generated by the big preparedness parade with which Albany celebrated Flag Day on Wednesday, when 30,000 marchers were cheered by 100,000 spectators, including the Sunday school delegates, and this enthusiasm was stimulated by the presence of the Boy Scouts of Albany, who acted as pages, ushers, messengers and general utility assistants during the entire scheduled program. A demonstration not scheduled occurred at the closing session Thursday night when Russell S. Greenman, chairman of the Albany committee in charge of the arrangements for the convention, expressed the thanks of the committee to the Boy Scouts who had been in attendance at every session since the convention opened. A group of Boy Scouts happened to be in the back of the church, attending to various duties at the time, and by a spontaneous suggestion they were brought to the platform and lined up before the audience. After a hearty ovation the Boy Scouts received a splendid tribute from former State President Avery, who concluded by calling for the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," and as a signal the big audience hushed their voices and the hymn was sung by the boys. Mr. Avery stood beside the Boy Scouts throughout the singing and told the delegates what they had heard often during the convention, that there stood the hope of the nation.

TWO GOOD SPORTS IN PENNSY CREW

Chickering and Foster Give Up Their Places in Varsity Boat to Meet Shift of Rest of Crew With Juniors—Experts Change Dope.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—It happens rarely that a crew captain fails to make a place in his own varsity boat. But instances when a leader of a college eight actually refuses his right to a seat are almost never known.

This year such a sportsmanlike example of college spirit was seen in a little drama enacted at the boat house of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen. Captain W. C. Chickering, a veteran of two years, had been reduced to the Penn junior boat a few days before when Coach Joe Wright, the famous Canadian amateur oarsman, ordered drastic changes which included an interchange of the members of the varsity and junior boats.

Chickering was rowing at No. 7, the seat of the starboard stroke, although his position for the last two years was at bow. Coach Wright offered to the captain the bow seat in his new line-up but a steadfast refusal followed.

Captain Chickering advanced two excuses. He said: "In the first place R. J. Breitlinger at bow in the new varsity is a better oarsman and in the second place I belong with the juniors. If I were to leave this crew, even to join the varsity, there are possibilities that a complete disruption would follow. The seat at No. 7 is a hard one to fill and the boys could not learn to row behind my successor in the remaining five days before the race."

Backing up Captain Chickering was diminutive Al Foster, the coxswain, who has shouted encouragement to Quaker varsity oarsmen in two Poughkeepsie regattas. His regular seat in the varsity was offered him by Coach Wright, but Foster insisted his voice and his crew mania would be almost totally strange to the set of eight men who formerly composed the junior crew and who had never worked facing him.

Few, if any, other members of the Penn varsity squad heard the triangular conversation between the coach, the captain, and the coxle, but when the news did become known Chickering and Foster were greater idols in the eyes of the Philadelphia than if they had just stepped out of a championship crew that had won the regatta on Saturday.

Since the rearrangement there has been no grumbling among Coach Wright's crewmen. Everything has progressed even more smoothly than before. Captain Chickering and the other veterans who were turned out of their honored seats began to address their successors immediately as "our varsity men" and he predictions of a victory were made more strenuously.

Coincidental with Chickering's declaration to row in the first boat came Coach Wright's decision to transfer his new varsity oarsmen to the new Al Ward shell turned out from the Edgewater boatbuilder's shop. Since Pennsylvania joined the college rowing colony here, the varsity shell of last year—named for Provost Wm. Smith of the University—has been used by the succeeding varsity oarsmen. Moreover, Jerauld, the dental college student, who was declared ineligible to advance with his shipmates into the new first boat but who had to remain with the juniors, was certain right along that the old shell was faster in the water than this year's product. Coach Wright was skeptical, however.

On Monday morning he tried out

ALL READY FOR THE BOAT RACES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, June 16.—Everything was in readiness today for the staging of the twenty-second annual regatta of the Inter-collegiate Rowing Association over the Highland-Poughkeepsie course Saturday. Despite the overcast skies and chilly winds this city was gay in its holiday dress of flags and bunting. Business buildings were draped with banners, flags and bunting, and shop windows were decorated with college flags, miniature shells and photographs of previous races. The hotels are rapidly filling up with folk from out of town and all conversations smack of boat races, shells and oarsmen.

The crews were out early and indulged in light practice runs to keep them fit for the grueling battle tomorrow.

Betting is very light. Syracuse followers are placing wagers of 3 to 1 against the field. Cornell and Columbia clans are calling for even money against each other and three to two against Pennsylvania.

Against Race Suicide.

"Where Are My Children," a motion picture which has become famous in the last few months during which it has been shown in all the large cities, will be given at the Kingston opera house Friday and Saturday of next week. The motive of the play is to show the unhappiness which results from the lack of a child in the house, and the yearning of one parent for the one missing feature which would make his house a home. The yearning parent happens to be a prosecuting attorney to whom, at the close of a famous criminal trial, is revealed by the man he has prosecuted the cause of the failure of his wish, and with imprecations he drives from his house the social butterfly whom he informs he ought to prosecute. The play is thrilling throughout.

AUSTRIA ANXIOUS TO TAKE BASSANO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Bassano, one of the picturesque towns of northern Italy, lying in the direct path of an invasion of Venetia, should the Austrians ever succeed in their drive down the Sugana Valley, is the subject of the war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society issued today from its Washington headquarters. The bulletin gives the following interesting historical and commercial data concerning this town of about 7,500 people situated on the turbulent Brenta river, twenty miles south of the Tyrolean border and thirty miles north of Padua:

"For sentimental rather than strategic reasons, the Austrian forces would be overjoyed if the fortunes of war should cause Bassano to fall into their hands, for it was before this city that Napoleon achieved his first signal success in his remarkable campaign of September, 1796, when his infantry covered a distance of 114 miles in six days, besides winning three battles from the Austrian troops.

"Thirteen years after his victory at Bassano Napoleon raised the town to a duchy and conferred the dukedom upon his devoted secretary of state, Maret, the French journalist and diplomat, who shares with Daru the distinction of having been one of the hardest workers in the service of the great Corsican.

"Bassano is one of the 'infant' cities of northern Italy, judged by the age standards of Vicenza, Verona, Venice, Padua and other municipalities of Venetia, although it was six hundred years old when the first permanent English settlement was made in America. A few years after it was founded in the eleventh century the district was given as a fief to Ezzelin, a German follower of Conrad II. Ezzelin founded the famous Ezzelin family which dominated this town and neighboring cities from time to time during the middle ages. The most powerful of these feudal lords, and the most notorious, on account of his savage cruelty, was Ezzelin da Romano, a staunch supporter of Emperor Frederick II and one of the most successful of the Ghibelline adherents in the great civil wars which devastated Italy during the thirteenth century. He not only held Bassano, but, with the aid of the emperor, extended his sway over Verona, Vicenza, Padua and Treviso. Eventually Pope Alexander IV declared a crusade against him, whereupon he made an attempt to invest Milan. Here he was wounded and captured. Enraged at his ill fortune in falling into the hands of his enemies, he tore the bandages from his wounds and refused all food, thus coming to a much more tragic end than did his compatriot in arms, Enzo, a natural son of Emperor Frederick, who was captured in 1249 and held a prisoner in Bologna for the remainder of his life. Enzo's 23 years of confinement were soled by the devotion of Lucia da Vladagola, a gentlewoman of Bologna, who is said to have endeavored unceasingly to secure her lover's release. There is a legend to the effect that on one occasion the famous prisoner's escape had almost been accomplished when a lock of his golden hair, hanging over the top of a wine cask in which he was concealed, betrayed him.

"Bassano is beautifully situated at the foot of the Venetian Alps. It is famous for its potteries, especially its majolica, and for an extensive printing establishment. Its trade is largely in silks, leathers, wines, oils and asparagus.

"Few are the medieval Italian cities which cannot boast the name of a great artist or sculptor as a favorite son. Bassano's contribution to the gallery of fame is the Da Ponte family of painters, who adopted the name of their birthplace as a surname. The most distinguished member of the house was Jacopo da Ponte Bassano, a disciple of the Titian school."

Union S. S. Excursion.

The Sunday schools of the Clinton Avenue and Trinity Methodist Episcopal churches will hold their annual excursion on Wednesday, July 12, when they will go to Bear Mountain Park on the steamer Mary Powell. The boat will stop at West Point on its way to and from Bear Mountain for the accommodation of excursionists who desire to stop there. Bear Mountain Park is owned by the state, which has been expending a large amount of money there, and excursions are run there from New York city daily, thousands of people availing themselves of the opportunity of a boat ride on the Hudson and a stop at the park, and there has been a strong demand on the part of Kingstonians for an excursion there this year.

CHANCELLOR BOASTS GERMAN SUCCESS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville, June 16.—Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, addressed the Reichstag this afternoon on the question of peace, declaring that Germany's position has never been so strong since the war began.

The chancellor's speech came unexpectedly during the third reading of the budget.

"Six months ago I first spoke of our readiness for peace," said Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, "basing my remarks upon the military situation as it existed then. I could do this confident that the situation created by the war would develop still further to our advantage. Events have justified this confidence. We have made further progress, and we are now stronger on all fronts than ever before."

WHY MORRIS BASCH WEARS HEADGEAR

Some Troubles Over Cows Grazing on Hooker Street on Thursday Led to a Neighbor Smashing Morris Over the Head With a Rock.

Morris Basch of No. 12 St. Mary's street is wearing a headgear of white bandages this morning as the result of some trouble with residents on Hooker street on Thursday afternoon. From what could be learned it seems that Mr. Basch is grazing some cows in a vacant lot on that street and Thursday afternoon he went out to look after them and found two of the animals tied up to a fence. He untied the cows and was set upon by a woman, who grasped him by the throat. Just then her husband came up and bounded Mr. Basch over the head with a big rock, inflicting a deep gash. Further developments are expected to follow.

DIFFERENT EGG DISHES.

Your success and happiness lie in you.

External conditions are the accidents of life, its outer trappings.—Bishop Fallows.

At this season of the year when eggs are plentiful no menu is complete without eggs served in some form.

This is the time to revel in sponge cakes, angel foods, omelets and such dishes, using numbers of eggs which we have denied ourselves during the scarcity of eggs. The following dishes may prove suggestive.

Lucanian Eggs.—Prepare a cupful of cooked macaroni, a cupful and three-fourths of white sauce, a half cupful of grated cheese, three-fourths of a cupful of buttered crumbs and salt, paprika and onion juice to taste. Hard cook five eggs in the shell and when cool cut in eighths. Put a layer of macaroni in a buttered baking dish, add half of the white sauce, all of the cheese and a teaspoonful of onion juice, and half of the eggs, repeat with another layer of macaroni, eggs and white sauce and cover with the buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown. To make the white sauce use three tablespoonfuls of butter, three of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, paprika to taste and one and three-fourths cupfuls of milk; cook until smooth and thick.

Supper Dish.—A simple and appetizing hot dish to serve for a supper dish is prepared by spreading slices of bread with butter, place in a baking dish and pour over a pint of milk, mixed with two beaten eggs, a dash of salt and red pepper and a half a cupful of grated cheese. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until firm.

Mexican Scrambled Eggs.—Roast a dozen green peppers, peel, remove seeds and chop, then boil until tender in a very little water and season well with butter. Beat six eggs, add salt and the peppers and stir for a moment in hot butter. Serve hot.

Angel Food.—Sift one cupful of flour, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar to it. Beat a cupful of egg whites until stiff, add a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, and fold in the flour. The eggs should be beaten with another quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Bake in a tube pan 50 to 60 minutes, in a slow oven.

DIFFERENT EGG DISHES.

Your success and happiness lie in you.

External conditions are the accidents of life. Its outer trappings—Bishop Fallows.

At this season of the year when eggs are plentiful no menu is complete without eggs served in some form. This is the time to revel in sponge cakes, angel foods, omelets and such dishes, using numbers of eggs which we have denied ourselves during the scarcity of eggs. The following dishes may prove suggestive.

Lucanian Eggs.—Prepare a cupful of cooked macaroni, a cupful and three-fourths of white sauce, a half cupful of grated cheese, three-fourths of a cupful of buttered crumbs and salt, paprika and onion juice to taste. Hard cook five eggs in the shell and when cool cut out the yolks. Put a layer of macaroni in a buttered baking dish, add half of the white sauce, all of the cheese and a teaspoonful of onion juice, and half of the eggs, repeat with another layer of macaroni, eggs and white sauce and cover with the buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown. To make the white sauce use three tablespoonfuls of butter, three of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, paprika to taste and one and three-fourths cupfuls of milk; cook until smooth and thick.

Supper Dish.—A simple and appetizing hot dish to serve for a supper dish is prepared by spreading slices of bread with butter, place in a baking dish and pour over a pint of milk, mixed with two beaten eggs, a dash of salt and red pepper and a half a cupful of grated cheese. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until firm.

Mexican Scrambled Eggs.—Roast a dozen green peppers, peel, remove seeds and chop, then boil until tender in a very little water and season well with butter. Beat six eggs, add salt and the peppers and stir for a moment in hot butter. Serve hot.

Angel Food.—Sift one cupful of flour, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar to it. Beat a cupful of egg whites until stiff, add a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, and fold in the flour. The eggs should be beaten with another quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Bake in a tube pan 50 to 60 minutes, in a slow oven.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 16, 1916.

The need of military preparedness by the United States appears by this time to be generally admitted except by supine pacifists, but the need of preparedness of other kinds has been neglected. Probably this lack of discussion on general preparedness has been due to the greater urgency for recruiting our army and navy to at least peace strength at once, but with military preparedness there must be preparedness of another kind, which is best expressed by the following extract from Justice Hughes's telegram to the Chicago convention accepting the Republican nomination for president: "We must have the strength which self-respect demands, the strength of an efficient nation ready for every emergency. Our preparation must be industrial and economical as well. Our severest test will come after the war is over. We must make a fair and wise readjustment of the tariff, in accordance with sound protective principles, to insure our economic independence and to maintain American standards of living. We must conserve the best interests of labor, realizing that in democracy, patriotism and strength must be rooted in even-handed justice. In preventing, as we must, unjust discrimination and monopolistic practices, we must still be zealous to assure the foundations of honest business. Particularly should we seek the expansion of foreign trade. We must not throttle enterprise, here or abroad, but rather promote it and take pride in honorable achievements."

Preparedness for one thing means system; organization in place of chaos. Nobody doubts that the business of the United States is carried on in a disorganized way. New York state probably has the most systematic methods, far from being perfect, yet, but whose beginning can be traced to the creation of the Public Service Commission under Justice Hughes while Governor. Those commissions provide an ample and inexpensive method for the poor man to secure rights long denied to him by many public service corporations, while the latter with few exceptions recognize the barrier which protects them from "strike" efforts on the part of unscrupulous individuals against whose schemes before that time the cost of litigation made many fights prohibitive. The public service plan inaugurated by Governor Hughes has been adopted since with few modifications by almost every important State. That was only one phase of the constructive work done by Hughes while at Albany to eliminate confusion, duplication and excesses which in a large way kept producer and consumer apart. His constructive work in New York State was practical, it originated with him and he foresaw clearly the difficulties in its way and in nearly every instance overcame them. His insurance legislation marked a new epoch in the insurance business which was beneficial alike to companies and policy-holders, and nobody would return to the old system after the thorough test which his plan has had. Time is the great test for all works, and time has proved the wisdom of the Hughes plans in New York State.

The decisions which Justice Hughes has made as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in important cases have proved a breadth of understanding not only of legal questions but of business and economic conditions which have won the admiration of other judges, of lawyers and all classes of business and laboring men who have given the matter any attention. They show a thorough grasp of business and economic conditions which few men possess. They display the knowledge of the student tempered with the sagacity and wisdom of the philosopher, who is experienced in the ways of the world. Idealism is apparent, but his mental observation and consideration of vexatious problems involved in the cases decided by Mr. Hughes as Justice is not beclouded by visionary fancies; on the contrary his logic and reasoning are of the most practical kind and in practice work out a result as nearly perfect as the human mind can plan. There is a fairness displayed which has characterized the man from the beginning of his career, and his language, like his actions, is clear cut, vigorous and simple, and so forceful and direct as to command attention and respect. No one can read his written words or his utterances without being stirred into mental activity whose logical result is a better understanding of the subject and ability to view the matter from all angles. His words, like his thoughts, have a systematic and logical arrangement which unconsciously is communicated to his hearers or readers.

To such a man as Governor Hughes, Justice Hughes, and now Mr. Hughes, has proved himself to be, may be entrusted safely a program of national, industrial and economic preparedness, without which military preparedness alone is like employing a police force without having in the town sufficient houses for their shelter or enough supplies for them to eat. In a small way industrial and economic preparedness means the study of means whereby crops may be increased, labor provided, transportation assured, machinery kept in motion and education advanced. It is a system of conservation of all energies and activities. It is different from Socialism, which is theoretical only, in that it seeks to encourage individual effort but save the waste resulting from duplication, and to place the resources of all parts of the country in a condition whereby they may be used to the best advantage to consumer and producer. In a republic such as ours, such a system can be built with far more satisfactory results than in a monarchy like Germany, and with officials possessing the Hughes standard of duty there is an assurance of personal freedom which in view of the American character never could be changed to a system of paternalism whereby the individual would lose his liberty and become merged into a machine. For a brief summary of what is needed reference must be had to the paragraph quoted from the Hughes telegram of acceptance, and the election of Hughes will mean a long step forward in the direction of sound conditions on which future business may be conducted.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

She (during the spat)—"You should have married some stupid, credulous girl." He—"Well, my dear, I did the best I could."—Boston Transcript.

"This firm claims it ought to have protection for its business as it is an infant industry." "What is it?" "Manufacturing baby ribbon."—Baltimore American.

Judge—"Anything to say?" Prisoner—"Well, not me, Lord. But if you'll allow me little daughter here to recite a passage out of 'The Merchant of Venice'."—Punch.

"Who is the favorite son in your state?" "We haven't any," replied Senator Sorghum. "If we like anybody we're not going to hurt his chances by making a favorite son of him. We're going to hold him out for a dark horse."—Washington Star.

"Do you believe in the saying that language is used for the concealment of thought?" "No," replied Miss Cayenne. "In much of the language you hear you haven't even the comforting suspicion that there may be a thought hiding."—Washington Star.

Time to Cool.

John Massfield, the English poet, said at a dinner in New York: "The conscripted soldiers, of course, are not treated with as much honor in England as the volunteers."

"A young conscript, just called up, complained the other day about his tea."

"'Sergeant,' he said, 'this 'ere tea o' mine's quite cold.'"

"'Well, o' course it's cold,' snarled the sergeant, 'ain't it been waitin' eighteen months for you?'"—New York Times.

Hearing, But Not Listening.

In the course of a visit to Nagpur, the capital of the Central Provinces, I heard of an amusing ending to a civil case. It was an appeal case, and on one side was a Mr. Stanyan, an English barrister, and on the other a number of native pleaders. The arguments on both sides had been heard and the case closed for judgment.

Suddenly one of the native pleaders got up and addressed the court once more. Mr. Stanyan snarled it for some time, but losing patience, he also stood up and, addressing the court, said: "Your Honor, I would beg with all respect to point out to the court that my learned friend opposite is entirely out of order in addressing the court, and if I may be permitted to say so, the court has no right to be listening to him."

The court who at that time was writing, put his head over the desk and said: "Mr. Stanyan, it's a great piece of impudence on your part to assume that the court is listening to him."—Stanley's Indian Reminiscences.

Just as Good.

Advertisements in the daily press are constantly warning the public against accepting substitutes for the wares advertised. The practice, however, among salesmen of proffering articles "just as good" still seems somewhat prevalent. observes The Christian Science Monitor. A noteworthy instance was recently recorded in Liverpool, England. A bookseller was asked for Pope's

ULSTER-KINGSTON ALUMNI BANQUET

Class of 1916 of Kingston High School to be Entertained at Banquet and Dance on June 27—First Graduating Class Numbers 68 Members.

At a recent meeting of the senior class of Kingston high school it was voted to make the members of the Ulster and Kingston Academy Alumni honorary members of the alumni of Kingston high school, and it has been decided by the Ulster-Kingston Alumni to tender the class of 1916 of the high school a banquet and dance on Tuesday evening, June 27, at 8 o'clock, at the high school.

It has been the custom in years past for the alumni of the two old academies to tender each graduating class a banquet and dance, and the custom will be observed again this year. Owing to the large number of graduates from the two old academies the committee in charge of the banquet and dance has found it impossible to personally notify each graduate of the coming event, but it is hoped that as many as can will attend this initial affair.

It has been decided that there will be no dues, but each graduate will pay $1.25 for a ticket to cover the expense of the affair. These tickets may be obtained at the drug stores of the Connelly Drug Company and Benjamin Johnston down town, and at Stelle's shoe store up town.

The first graduating class of Kingston high school numbers 68 members.

The committee in charge of the annual event are trusting that there will be a large attendance and each member of the alumni of the two old academies are urged to bear the date in mind and attend.

Following the banquet dancing will be enjoyed. The menu arranged for the banquet follows: Fruit cocktail, roast chicken, jelly rolls, mashed potatoes, peas, lettuce, tomato salad, crackers, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Further details will be announced later.

Shakespeare Censored.

The dramatic censorship in England may, as it is abused, is very different from what has been known in former periods when many of Shakespeare's plays have been censored. C. C. C. in his autobiography tells us of one master of the word, who was responsible for the censoring of plays in his days, expounding the whole first act of C. C. C. on the "Richard III." on the ground that the destruction of Henry VIII. reminded weak people of the times, then living in France.

On another occasion "King Lear" was censored during the illness of George Colman when reader of the play was the use of such words as "heaven" and "heaven."—London Mail.

WANTED TO FIGHT A KNIFE DUEL

Grant Roosa Said He Was a Knife Fighter, But James Fitzgerald Fought Only With His Fists—Roosa Pleaded Guilty to Stabbing James—Held For Grand Jury.

Grant Roosa, a negro, 19 years old, was arrested on Thursday afternoon by Sergeant Hanley on a warrant sworn out by James Fitzgerald, another negro, of No. 47 Van Buren street, who charged Grant with stabbing him with a knife the night before Decoration Day. This morning Grant was arraigned before Recorder Lang and entered a plea of guilty. As the crime charged was assault in the second degree, the court remanded him to the county jail in default of a $1,000 bail bond, to await the action of the grand jury.

Fitzgerald appeared before Recorder Lang on Thursday seeking a warrant for the arrest of Grant, and at that time told the story of the stabbing. According to his story he and several other fellows were standing on the corner of Broadway and Cornell street the night before Decoration Day when Roosa came up and addressing James said: "Give me a cigarette you—"

James gave him a cigarette saying: "Here is a cigarette, but that's no way to ask a gentleman for one."

"I bear you are a scrapper" Grant is said to have replied.

James denied the soft impeachment and said "Don't start anything here on Broadway," saying which he walked up Cornell street followed by Grant, and Grant's brother.

When they got in the street away from Grant is said to have told James "I am no fist fighter. I am a knife fighter," and challenged James to a duel with knives.

"I am no knife fighter. I am a fist fighter" James said he replied.

Grant is reported to say in reply "Well you have got to fight with a knife" and he offered James one.

Just then James noticed Grant's brother coming for him with a knife and he knocked the brother down, and then Grant stabbed him in the back with a knife.

James showed the recorder where he had been stabbed.

He concluded his story by saying that friends then separated them after he had been cut.

Low Price Loses out Against Low Cost

PRICE may sell some things to farmers, but price alone is a poor argument compared with the records for low cost of operation made by Mogul kerosene engines.

Because they run on kerosene, Mogul engines produce farm power at the lowest possible cost.

You know what gasoline costs. You know, too, what kerosene costs. Take the difference—multiply it by the number of gallons of fuel an engine will consume in five years, figuring one pint of fuel per horse power per hour.

At what price must you buy a gasoline engine to make it cost you as little as a Mogul does? Could you afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift? See the dealer about this. He has the figures all worked out for you on all sizes of Mogul engines from 1 to 50 H. P.

THE MAVERICK TO HOLD FOLK FEAST

The annual community carnival which, under the name of the Maverick Folk-Feast is coming to be known as a Catskill classic, will be repeated this summer amid the same unique setting that has given it such fame. The Maverick, for the benefit of the uninitiate, is a little valley on the Hudson river slopes of the Catskills, eight miles from Kingston and within two miles of Woodstock, already widely known for its resident artist colony. A fraction of a mile from the land-locked reaches of the beautiful Ashokan reservoir, the scenic possibilities of the Maverick have been realized to the utmost by the artistic genius which has been interested in its development upon lines like unto that of no other spot in America.

In passing, it may be said, that Hervey White, author and poet, owns the Maverick and the ten little cottages nestled within its boundaries wherein are quartered musicians seeking the quiet places other than the conventional summer resorts so that they may work uninterruptedly and play about as they please when the spirit moves them. Among these musicians are Paul Kefer and Horace Britt, the New York cellists; Pierre Henrotte and John Taylor, violinists and Marguerite Hobart and Maria Mieler-Narodny, sopranos, who are numbered among the more prominent permanent residents and their efforts have added to the establishment of the highest reputation for Woodstock productions.

The inevitable community purpose, not as old as the institution itself, has been developed with the past two years and finds expression in an open air theater built in an abandoned stone quarry on the mountain side. The opening of this theater was the occasion for a demonstration of the talent available in the immediate vicinity. Woodstock painters decorated the theater and an orchestra and dancers were aided by a crowd of several thousand people in holding a high carnival to mark the debut of this novel festival. The outgrowth has been a permanent institution modeled upon European fetes with picnic grounds and other attractions added. The original inspiration, the theater, will be the scene of the community festival as well as of a series of Sunday afternoon classical concerts.

To house audiences in the event of unfavorable weather prevailing, a hall has been built below the natural theater and here the painters in the community will arrange a weekly exhibition of pictures at a nominal admission charge. There is a pronounced economic theory behind the establishment as union rates will prevail for the musicians of the festival-orchestra while 75 per cent of the Sunday receipts will go to the performers and 25 per cent to the management. The Maverick cottages are apt to be engaged but boarding places or camping sites can be located upon application to Mr. White at Woodstock.

Such noted artists as Jean Sibelius, Reinhold Gliere, Arthur Nerin, Henry F. Gilbert, among the composers, Anna Pavlova, Lada, among the dancers, Edwin Markham and Ivan Narodny among the writers, Birge Harrison and Dewing Woodward among the painters have been glad to offer the influence of their names.

Deadly Insult.

Among the offenders huddled in the dock before a police magistrate was a most respectable looking grocer. He was charged with assault.

"Why did you strike this man?" was the first question the magistrate put to him.

"Well, your honor," said the grocer, "what would you yourself do if you kept a grocery store and a man came in and asked whether he could take a moving picture of your cheese?"—New York Times.

NIGHTHAWK

(Chordeiles virginianus)

Length, ten inches. Not to be confused with the whippoorwill. The latter lives in woodland and is chiefly nocturnal. The nighthawk often flies by day, when the white bar across the wing and its nasal cry are distinguishing.

Range: Breeds throughout most of the United States and Canada; winters in South America.

Habits and economic status: The skillful evolutions of a company of nighthawks as the birds gracefully cleave the air in intersecting circles is a sight to be remembered. So expert are they on the wing that no insect is safe from them, even the swift dragonfly being captured with ease. Unfortunately their erratic flight tempts men to use them for targets, and this inexcusable practice is seriously diminishing their numbers, which is deplorable, since no birds are more useful. This species makes no nest, but lays its two-spotted eggs on the bare ground, sometimes on the gravel roof of the city house. The nighthawk is a voracious feeder and is almost exclusively insectivorous. Some stomachs contained from 30 to 50 different kinds of insects, and more than 600 kinds have been identified from the stomachs thus far examined. From 500 to 1,000 ants are often found in a stomach. Several species of mosquitoes, including Anopheles, the transmitter of malaria, are eaten. Other well-known pests destroyed by the nighthawk are the Colorado potato beetle, cucumber beetles, chestnut, rice, clover-leaf and cotton-boll weevils, billbugs, bark beetles, squash bugs, and moths of the cotton worm.

Pat to the Rescue.

The New York householder engaged an Irishman fresh over from a remote district of his native land as general factotum. Pat gave much satisfaction, as he was quiet and smart, and always cheerful and obliging. Only one thing bothered him, and that was his master's telephone, and many a suspicious look he gave it when in his master's study. One night they were awakened by a cry of "Fire!" and Pat, hastily dressing himself, hurried down stairs, and rushing to the telephone shouted: "Hey, mister, ye'd better come out o' that, or ye'll be burnt to death."

Try These Timely Recipes.

Toast thin slices of stale bread, butter generously, and line a buttered pudding dish with them. Fill the dish with alternate layers of strawberries and toast, sifting sugar plentifully over them, then set the dish in the oven and bake about half an hour. Serve cold, with rich, thick, cream.

Strawberry Pie.

Line a deep pie plate with nice rich pastry and bake. Then fill with fresh ripe berries, adding plenty of sugar. Cover with a meringue made of white of two eggs whipped stiff with two or three tablespoons powdered sugar, and brown lightly in the oven.

Strawberry Cream Pie.

Line a plate with nice pastry rolled very thin, fill with ripe strawberries, adding sugar to sweeten, and bake quickly. Whip one cup thick sweet cream, add yolks of two eggs and sugar to taste, and whip until stiff, pour over the cooled pie and serve very cold.

Fairy Pudding.

To one and a half cups strawberry juice, either fresh or canned, add half cup water and put over the fire. When boiling add half cup sugar and two heaping tablespoons corn starch dissolved in a little cold water, and let boil until the starch is well cooked. Remove from the fire and while still boiling hot beat in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Serve cold with whipped cream. If the juice of canned fruit is used, that has already been sweetened, less sugar will be required.

Strawberry Dumplings.

Sift together one pint flour, one teaspoon each baking powder and salt, rub in two ounces butter, and mix to a soft dough with half cup milk. Roll out thin and cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Place three or four large strawberries in the center of each round, fold up the dough around them and pinch together into a dumpling. Lay smooth side up on a plate and either bake or steam them—the latter by setting the plate into a steamer over boiling water. Serve hot with cream and sugar.—Farm and Home.

Billy, Do.

As William bent over her fair face he whispered, "Darling, if I should ask you in French if I might kiss you, what would you say?"

Nancy, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed, "Billet doux."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MANAGER HOOK HAS AN ALFALFA DAY

Also the Farm Bureau Peace Car Seems to Have Done Some Hill Climbing—Success or Failure Seems to Have Depended on Seed.

Tuesday, June 13, was one of the busy days of the season for Manager Hook, of the Farm Bureau, when several of the farms in the county where trial acres of alfalfa had been planted last season, were inspected. Several new plots of alfalfa will be planted this year in co-operation with the Farm Bureau and during the season they will be visited and suggestions for their care will be offered by Mr. Hook. Last season several plots were planted and in many cases the crop this year is good, especially where the northern grown genuine Grimm seed was used; where the common seed was used the stand was often poor.

At the farm of Jules Bruchaud of Olive Bridge, where genuine northern Grimm seed was planted, the stand was found excellent, considering the high altitude and severe weather. Frank Roosa, who is the farmer in charge of the extensive farm of Mr. Bruchaud, had three acres seeded last year. The Bruchaud farm is run along modern scientific lines and this year a small herd of pure bred Guernsey cattle will be added and a small dairy will be added to this well equipped farm.

The next farm visited by the manager was that of Wilson Riseley at Mt. Pleasant, where Mr. Riseley had put in one acre of alfalfa last year but at harvest time this year found an excellent stand of clover, the alfalfa having failed to grow. In altitudes and severe weather such as exist here none but the best northern grown genuine Grimm seed is recommended. Mr. Riseley will sow another acre this year, and using his experience of last year and with the supervision of the manager of the Farm Bureau, will endeavor to get this crop firmly established on his magnificent farm. Mr. Riseley has one of the best farms in the upper Esopus valley and has adopted up-to-date lines in his work.

A trip over the mountain from Glenford to Woodstock brought the manager to the farm of Mrs. Bertha Poole Weyl. Three acres of Grimm seed was sown and looked after by Manager Hook. The stand is good. George Burt is also a believer in alfalfa and other modern farm problems and has one acre of alfalfa. Mr. Burt has taken up modern farming and believes in up-to-date farming. At the farm of Charles L. Shufeldt at Zena, where the common alfalfa seed was sown last year, the crop was practically a failure and this season northern grown seed will be sown by Mr. Shufeldt and the plot will be worked with the supervision of Manager Hook, perhaps in no other place in the county has the failure of sowing common seed been so evident as on the farm of Mr. Shufeldt. Had the better seed been sown the stand would have probably been much more sturdy.

The three acres of common seedling on the farm of N. M. Nash at Woodstock was also inspected and in general the stand was not good, perhaps one-third of a crop. This year northern grown seed will be planted in co-operation with the Farm Bureau.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 16, 1916

The need of military preparedness by the United States appears by this time to be generally admitted except by supine pacifists, but the need of preparedness of other kinds has been neglected. Probably this lack of discussion on general preparedness has been due to the greater urgency for recruiting our army and navy to at least peace strength at once, but with military preparedness there must be preparedness of another kind, which is best expressed by the following extract from Justice Hughes's telegram to the Chicago convention accepting the Republican nomination for president: "We must have the strength which self-respect demands, the strength of an efficient nation ready for every emergency. Our preparation must be industrial and economical as well. Our severest test will come after the war is over. We must make a fair and wise readjustment of the tariff, in accordance with sound protective principles, to insure our economic independence and to maintain American standards of living. We must conserve the best interests of labor, realizing that in democracy, patriotism and strength must be rooted in even-handed justice. In preventing, as we must, unjust discrimination and monopolistic practices, we must still be zealous to assure the foundations of honest business. Particularly should we seek the expansion of foreign trade. We must not throttle enterprise, here or abroad, but rather promote it and take pride in honorable achievements."

Preparedness for one thing means systematic organization in place of chaos. Nobody doubts that the business of the United States is carried on in a disorganized way. New York state probably has the most systematic methods, far from being perfect yet, but whose business can be compared to the operation of the Public Service Commissions under Justice Hughes while Governor. Those commissions provide an ample and inexpensive method for the poor man to secure rights long denied to him by many public service corporations, while the latter with few exceptions recognize the barrier which protects them from "strike" efforts on the part of unscrupulous individuals against whose schemes before that time the cost of litigation made many fights prohibitive. The public service plan inaugurated by Governor Hughes has been adopted since with few modifications by almost every important State. That was only one phase of the constructive work done by Hughes while at Albany to eliminate confusion, duplication and excesses which in a large way kept producer and consumer apart. His constructive work in New York State was practical, it originated with him and he foresaw clearly the difficulties in its way and in nearly every instance overcame them. His insurance legislation marked a new epoch in the insurance business which was beneficial alike to companies and policy-holders, and nobody would return to the old system after the thorough test which his plan has had. Time is the great test for all works, and time has proved the wisdom of the Hughes plans in New York State.

The decisions which Justice Hughes has made as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in important cases have proved a breadth of understanding not only of legal questions but of business and economic conditions which have won the admiration of other judges, of lawyers and all classes of business and laboring men who have given the matter any attention. They show a thorough grasp of business and economic conditions which few men possess. They display the knowledge of the student tempered with the sagacity and wisdom of the philosopher, who is experienced in the ways of the world. Idealism is apparent, but his mental observation and consideration of vexatious problems involved in the cases decided by Mr. Hughes as Justice is not beclouded by visionary fancies; on the contrary his logic and reasoning are of the most practical kind and in practice work out a result as nearly perfect as the human mind can plan. There is a fairness displayed which has characterized the man from the beginning of his career, and his language, like his actions, is clear cut, vigorous and simple, and so forceful and direct as to command attention and respect. No one can read his written words or his utterances without being stirred into mental activity whose logical result is a better understanding of the subject and ability to view the matter from all angles. His words, like his thoughts, have a systematic and logical arrangement which unconsciously is communicated to his hearers or readers.

To such a man as Governor Hughes, Justice Hughes, and now Mr. Hughes, has proved himself to be, may be entrusted safely a program of national, industrial and economic preparedness, without which military preparedness alone is like employing a police force without having in the town sufficient houses for their shelter or enough supplies for them to eat. In a small way industrial and economic preparedness means the study of means whereby crops may be increased, labor provided, transportation assured, machinery kept in motion and education advanced. It is a system of conservation of all energies and activities. It is different from Socialism, which is theoretical only, in that it seeks to encourage individual effort but save the waste resulting from duplication, and to place the resources of all parts of the country in a condition whereby they may be used to the best advantage to consumer and producer. In a republic such as ours, such a system can be built with far more satisfactory results than in a monarchy like Germany, and with officials possessing the Hughes standard of duty there is an assurance of personal freedom which in view of the American character never could be changed to a system of paternalism whereby the individual would lose his liberty and become merged into a machine. For a brief summary of what is needed reference must be had to the paragraph quoted from the Hughes telegram of acceptance, and the election of Hughes will mean a long step forward in the direction of sound conditions on which future business may be conducted.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

She (during the spat)—"You should have married some stupid, ridiculous girl." He—"Well, my dear, I did the best I could."—Boston Transcript.

"This firm claims it ought to have protection for its business as it is an infant industry." "What is it?" "Manufacturing baby ribbon."—Baltimore American.

Judge—"Anything to say?" Prisoner—"Well, not myself, me Lord. But if you'll allow me little daughter here to recite a passage out of 'The Merchant of Venice'."—Punch.

"Who is the favorite son in your state?" "We haven't any," replied Senator Sorghum. "If we like anybody we're not going to hurt his chances by making a favorite son of him. We're going to hold him out for a dark horse."—Washington Star.

"Do you believe in the saying that language is used for the concealment of thought?" "No," replied Miss Cayenne. "In much of the language you hear you haven't even the comforting suspicion that there may be a thought hiding."—Washington Star.

Time to Cool.

John Massfield, the English poet, said at a dinner in New York. "The conscripted soldiers, of course, are not treated with as much honor in England as the volunteers."

"A young conscript, just called up, complained the other day about his tea."

"Sergeant," he said, "this 'ere tea o' mine's quite cold."

"Well, o' course it's cold," snarled the sergeant, "ain't it been waitin' eighteen months for you?"—New York Times.

Heating, But Not Listening.

In the course of a visit to Napoleon, the capital of the Central Provinces, I heard of an amusing episode. On one side was a Mr. Stanyan, an English barrister, and on the other a number of native pleaders. The arguments on both sides had been heard and the case closed for judgment.

Suddenly one of the native pleaders got up and addressed the court once more. Mr. Stanyan snarled it for some time, but losing patience, he also stood up and, addressing the court, said: "Your Honor, I would beg with all respect to point out to the court that my learned friend opposite is entirely out of order in addressing the court, and if I may be permitted to say so, the court has no right to be listening to him."

The court who at that time was writing, put his head over the desk and said: "Mr. Stanyan, it's a great piece of impudence on your part to assume that the court is listening to him." Stanyan's Indian Reminiscences.

Just as Good.

Advertisements in the daily press are constantly warning the public against accepting substitutes for the wares advertised. The practice, however, among salesmen of profiting by the fact that the public is not always able to distinguish between the original and the substitute, is a somewhat prevalent one. The Christian Science Monitor, a last from Brooklyn to open her noteworthy instance was recently recorded in Liverpool, England. A good season and more boards than she will be able to accommodate.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Well I am thankful to say that spring cleaning, painting and paper hanging is all finished at my house," said the street corner politician, as he heaved a profound sigh of relief. He continued "Talking about paper hanging I always used to wonder why there was so many different colors and styles in wall paper displayed in the local store windows handling that line, until I was called on to help select the paper for our house, and while I was helping—that is, I looked on and made suggestions to the women folks that were invariably ignored, although they had urged me to come and help them, and I lost considerable time from business doing so—to see the different shades of color selected by others who were also hunting the new spring styles in paper.

"It is queer what funny taste some people do have in selecting wall paper. Now I could pick out paper that would hit me just right in about half an hour at the most for the entire house, while some folks take weeks to make a selection, and then are not satisfied. I also found out that the plain paper, as it is called, is rising in price, and as it is it costs more than the figured paper although I did not know that until I went with the folks to watch them pick out paper I did not like, but had to say I did. For that matter all wall paper is said to be bound on the up grade in price due to the war in Europe. I hope, however, that the war will be settled long before it is time for me to have to buy any more wall paper.

"But then it takes all kinds of people and all kinds of paper to suit all kinds of taste as an old woman used to say. That that is so just take the old 'Long House' on lower Broadway for example. It is now vacant and all of the tenants have moved to other localities. If you want to see some fancy action in wall papers just get some one to take you through some of the rooms of that historic old building and believe me Sunday funny papers in all their glory have nothing on the walls of some of those rooms when it comes to colors.

"It would seem that every tenant who ever resided there had an entirely different taste in selecting wall paper, and also in having it put on after they got it. Some rooms are decorated with border paper only. By that I mean that instead of having the usual side wall paper placed on the wall with a border atop of it the entire room is papered with border paper.

"This is true in the case where the rooms had been occupied by colored tenants. As every one knows the colored people have an eye for color, and some of those rooms are certainly adorned with dizzy colors. Huge screaming borders of bright colors run riot up and down the walls and even across the ceilings, and the brighter and more glaring the color the more beautiful the room appeared to the tenant I suppose.

"But what is taste anyway if not the pleasing of the majority whether it be in clothes, pictures, wall paper or what not. That being so anyone has the right, for which he or she is duly thankful, to decorate the walls of the home as it suits them. This is a free country, and you don't have to use wall paper if you don't want to. Use whitewash.

"Harmony is what some say is the key note of taste. By that they mean that when picking out wall paper get it to harmonize in color scheme with the floor covering and the furniture in the room. Sounds easy don't it, but wait until you try it out.

"Take my advice, however, when you do get wall paper to have an expert put it on the wall. Don't leave it up to some member of the family who thinks he knows how to do it. I know a family who decided to let the 'old man,' as he was affectionately dubbed by his children, put the paper up, and then they all stood around and offered advice on how it should go up. By the time the various suggestions had been carried out

TICKET NAMED AT NIGHT SESSION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Coliseum, St. Louis, June 16.—The Democratic convention marked time and slowly disintegrated today. While the great bulk of the delegates slept late in their hotels, with baggage packed, waiting for the day session forced by the failure of the resolutions committee to agree upon the platform in time to have it presented last night, the thousands of visitors who have packed St. Louis since last Monday were hastening to their homes on every out-bound train.

The Democratic national ticket was completed just before midnight. The renomination of President Woodrow Wilson was accompanied by a demonstration that was kept going for 45 minutes. And only four minutes actual time elapsed between the announcement of that renomination and the declaration by United States Senator Ollie M. James of Kentucky that Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, likewise had been made the choice of the convention as its candidate for vice-president.

The actual time of the nominations was: President Wilson—Motion to suspend the rules and make his nomination by acclamation put by Senator James at 11:52; denied by Robert Emmett Burke of Illinois denied at 11:53; announcement by Chairman James that Woodrow Wilson had been renominated by the vote of 1,092 to 1, made at 11:54.

Vice-president Thomas R. Marshall—Nominated by Senator John W. Kern in two minute speech commencing at 11:55; motion to suspend rules and make the nomination by acclamation carried without waiting for seconding speeches, and Marshall formally declared the nominee by Chairman James at 11:58.

The scenes that preceded the nominations were the wildest that have marked a Democratic national convention in many years. The big hall was jammed to the doors. Within its gates were thousands passed through the police lines by counter-felt badges and bogus credentials issued by local officials. Outside, within ten minutes after the doors were thrown open, were hundreds of properly accredited delegates, officials of the convention and newspaper representatives. Their places had been filled and all appeals to the powers that be for permission to enter were refused. Such distinguished delegates as Charles Francis Murphy of Tammany Hall, and Sheriff "Al" Smith of New York city were among those denied admission. Many disgusted, returned to their hotels and made no effort to be present at the formal ratification of the national ticket. Others determined to get their rights proceeded to the telegraph office near the entrance to the convention hall and telegraphed Chairman James demanding that he get them into their seats.

These telegrams began pouring in on the chairman while William Jennings Bryan, under a suspension of the rules, was declaring for peace and prosperity and a united fight against the enemy in an old time speech eloquent with the principles of Democracy. Immediately Senator James dispatched officials to bring in all delegates, and for an hour the police vainly tried to get the men into the already overcrowded building who belonged there. Clothing was torn, tempers raged and there was plenty of actual fist encounters.

The Bryan speech and the demonstration in honor of President Wilson were the real features of the prolonged night session in the stifling hall. Invited to address the convention in response to the promise made at the day session by Senator James when the crowd in the galleries had cheered the Nebraskaan, Bryan made it plain that he was enthusiastically for the renomination and the re-election of President Wilson.

"He has broken the power of Wall street," he shouted amidst tumultuous applause. "Our party presents a united front; it carries the banner of peace, progress and prosperity and it demands the right to be continued in power to complete its program for the welfare of the people," was another slogan that carried weight.

All doubt as to where Bryan stands within the party was dispelled by his emphatic declaration of loyalty to the president and his promise to "carry the fight" to the Republican candidates and issues.

Bryan's speech had put the convention in an excellent humor and the managers of the president's campaign took full advantage of it. There was a distinct handicap at the outset, however. Attorney General John Wescott of New Jersey had been chosen to place the name of Mr. Wilson before the convention. Mr. Wescott possesses oratorical gifts of the highest order but his voice is limited in its strength. In consequence only a few persons in the hall were able to hear and understand the well-rounded phrases with which he described his candidate as the "scholar, the statesman, the financier, the emancipator, the pacificator and the moral leader of Democracy."

The invisible result of the lack of voice of the orator and the great crowd in the hall, uncomfortable, sweltering and trying to hear, was confusion that was distinctly unfortunate. Before Mr. Wescott was more than half through his speech the galleries were demanding that he "name your man" and the confusion was increasing. But Mr. Wescott refused to be hurried and he stuck to the text of his speech until he had completed it.

Realizing the temper of the crowd and also anxious to get the ticket nominated before it should encounter the hoodoo of Friday, Senator James permitted only two seconding speeches, the first by former Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio, and the second by Governor H. C. Stuart of Virginia, the state where the president was born.

Although the delegates themselves were unable to hear the name of their candidate as it left the lips of Mr. Wescott they were not left in any doubt as to what he had said. Senator William Hughes of the president's home state, New Jersey, set off the demonstration by emitting a locomotive yell.

The usual cheering was not as well organized as former conventions have witnessed and the demonstration was spasmodic in character. It was not participated in by the galleries but the delegates themselves made up for this. Led by Senator Hughes, carrying the New Jersey standard, the delegates paraded the hall cheering and chanting. The band in the gallery played popular airs and the floor and galleries joined in.

The most popular song of the night was "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" which was joined in with enthusiasm.

For forty-five minutes the demonstration ran its way. No spectacular devices were resorted to keep it going. There were no hysterical shrieking women in evidence, although the California state standard was carried in the line by the women delegates from that state. When Chairman James rapped for order he had very little trouble in getting the convention under control.

After the two seconding speeches had been completed, Senator Hughes was recognized.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," he said, "that the rules be suspended and that the renomination of Mr. Wilson be made by acclamation."

"I object," I object," came a wild shout from the rear of the Illinois section and the burly form of a 200 pound individual clad in heavy black coat, his face beaded with perspiration, allowed his way through the crowd.

It was Robert Emmet Burke, elected as delegate at large from Illinois, and opposed to the president because he claimed that the administration had favored England in the European war.

"I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman," he shouted, "while Senator James pounded for order as the delegates were all on their feet trying to find out what it was all about."

"State your point of order," shouted Chairman James. "I demand that the roll be called. I want to be recorded this time," yelled Burke.

"All in favor of suspending the rules and declaring the nomination of Woodrow Wilson to be by acclamation will vote aye," shouted James.

A mighty chorus of ayes swept delegates and guests alike.

"Opposed, no."

"No," shrieked Burke, amidst a storm of hisses.

"The motion is carried and by a vote of 1,092 to 1, I declare Woodrow Wilson the nominee," ruled James. Burke slipped back to his seat with the satisfaction of having made good his threat that he at least would be found recorded in opposition to the president.

Without delay, Senator James ordered a roll call of the states on the nomination for vice president. Arkansas gave way to Indiana and in a speech two minutes long Senator John W. Kern placed Vice President Marshall's name before the convention. While all opposition to the renomination had been wiped out earlier in the evening, it is doubtful if any of the delegates had desired to name an opposing candidate they would have been given the opportunity.

Chairman James entertained another motion to suspend the rules and without waiting to ask whether there were any additional nominees or any seconding speeches he put the motion and declared the Indiana incumbent the nominee of the convention to succeed himself.

Then came a long wait. The leaders had decided to complete the work of the convention and adjourn sine die, but the resolutions committee was in deadlock. Leading Democrats were called on for speeches and responded but what they said was lost in the confusion of the great crowd shuffling out of the hall.

Finally, seeing that there was no use of holding the delegates together, the leaders permitted adjournment until 11 o'clock today.

Sundown, June 15.—A very interesting talk on and stereopticon views of the life of Mr. Dimock while in Florida some years ago, were given by Mrs. L. A. Dimock Friday evening, June 16. The pictures of Mr. Dimock in some of his escapades were very interesting.

Quaint effects are produced by the use of velvet and moire ribbon in various widths. Particularly is this so in the suit illustrated. It is shown in chocolate colored taffeta and is trimmed with brown velvet ribbon, this in a half inch width being stitched in tape effect on the sleeves, body and belt of the coat, also on the hem of the skirt. The bouffant hip drape and the huge balloon sleeves are picturesque. The tall hat and high button boots are finishing details.

WANT "ADS" INSERTED AT THE SMALL COST OF CENT-A-WORD

"MAKE GOOD" VALUES AT Lay's Saturday Sale

"Shopping around" in quest of "cheap meats" doesn't pay. One who goes from one market to another to find the "cheapest" cuts generally gets what she or he pays for—no more, no less—and women or men have trouble for their pains. But it DOES PAY to order from a reliable dealer whose reputation in a community for square dealing is established. We have learned the truth of this statement from many of our patrons who had been induced to shop elsewhere by the lure of "low prices." Invariably they have come back wiser, but none the less victims of promises that were never made good.

DR. COOGAN WINS PRIZE FOR WORK

William J. Coogan, son of Mrs. Mary L. Coogan of this city, was graduated from Fordham University, New York city, on Wednesday with the degree of doctor of medicine, and received a prize of $25 in gold for the best clinical work during his four years' course in the School of Medicine.

The graduation exercises marked the close of the celebration of the diamond jubilee of the university and two hundred and sixty graduates received their degrees from His Eminence Cardinal Farley. The exercises were held outdoors for the first time since 1906 and were attended by eight thousand spectators who occupied an arena which had been erected on the campus. For the first time in Fordham's history, the five schools of the university combined their exercises instead of holding individual commencements on separate days. The Law School supplied nearly one-half the graduating class. The university conferred the degree of Bachelor of Laws on nine men noted in the church and state, the list being headed by the Rev. John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain of the United States battleship Maine when it was destroyed in Havana harbor, and who is now president of Dunwoodie Seminary. The degrees and prizes were awarded by Cardinal Farley. The degree of doctor of medicine was conferred on forty-two graduates.

Dr. Coogan was engaged in newspaper work in this city before entering the School of Medicine at Fordham and for several years was connected with The Freeman in a reportorial capacity. He is a graduate of Kingston Academy and has spent four years at Fordham. During the past two years, in addition to his school work, he has been connected with several hospitals in New York city and Brooklyn.

The commencement exercises were attended by Mrs. Mary L. Coogan, Miss Annie Mulhern, Miss Sarah Mulhern, J. A. Mulhern and Miss Gertrude Rafferty of this city.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, June 16.—Morris Keohokalohe, delegate from Hawaii, has had the hardest time getting about St. Louis of any one of the Democratic visitors. His troubles arise over the difficulty in pronouncing his name. He was a member of the rules committee and when he showed up for the first meeting he was presented to the other members. Former Governor Lon V. Stephens of Missouri was the first to tackle it.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Keokiki," he began, and then stopped.

Keohokalohe saved the situation by saying:

"Just call me Morris."

William Jennings Bryan must get tired of the everlasting hand shaking that is forced upon him. But if he does he fails to show it as he always has a smile and a handclasp for everyone who offers his hand. Mr. Bryan's seat in the press stand at the Coliseum was next to an aisle where the delegates passed and nine out of every ten stopped and shook hands.

Charles F. Murphy, chief of Tammany Hall; W. J. Bryan and a delegate from Mississippi all got on the same elevator at the Hotel Jefferson. The Mississippian recognized Mr. Bryan.

"How do you do, Mr. Bryan?" he exclaimed.

Mr. Bryan returned the greeting smilingly just as the car stopped at his floor. The Mississippian then turned to Mr. Murphy unaware of his identity.

"That was W. J. Bryan, the old boy himself," he declared. "He certainly is a great old man, isn't he?"

There was no reply. Mr. Murphy left the car at the next floor.

The Oregon delegates yesterday nominated a Democratic standard bearer for four years from now. As they marched about the convention hall yesterday in an ovation given Senator Ollie James they chanted "James for president four years from now." The cry was taken up by many in the galleries.

The news of the night's session of the convention to nominate the president and vice-president caused a rush for reservations on the railroads leading out from St. Louis. Today it appeared that the staid and quiet town of St. Louis will resume its natural staidness and quietness by Saturday night—and a little more so.

Boosters of "We want Wilson" songs are making rounds of the hotels singing their tunes. The songsters find the delegates and visitors in a receptive mood and encore until they are tired.

Roger Sullivan's withdrawal from the vice-presidential race caused little comment among the Democratic leaders other than "I don't see how he could have done otherwise in the face of the White House opposition."

Lutheran Synod in Elmira.

The fifteenth annual convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York and New England will be held in the Church of the Holy Trinity, the Rev. John Hassler, pastor, Elmira, N. Y., June 20 to 23. The officers of the synod are the Rev. William M. Horn of New York city, president; the Rev. Henry C. Erbes of Rochester, secretary; and Fred J. Walter of this city, secretary. The delegate to the convention for the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer is George L. Snyder, while Raymond G. Walker is alternate. Secretary Walter also expects to be in attendance at the convention.

Will Clash With Fast Kingston Team on McVey's Field on Delaware Avenue That Afternoon—Good Game Expected.

Kingston will play the fast Hurricanas of Amsterdam, N. Y., at McVey's Field on Sunday afternoon. The Hurricanas were last season known as the Empires, a club that defeated some of the fastest teams in central New York, with such teams as Ronin's All Stars, General Electric, Danforth's club, and Saratoga, went down to defeat before them. This year they have added additional strength and have gathered together some of the fastest players and have one of the best teams that has represented Amsterdam in many years, and are out with a sweeping challenge to all semi-professional clubs. The Hurricanas take their name from the large racing farm of the Hon. John Sanford of Amsterdam, and represent the huge carpet mills of which Mr. Sanford is the president. The game Sunday will be called at 3 o'clock. The battery for Kingston will be Kissam and Schrick. Matty Bence, the popular basketball referee will handle the indicator.

Was Elting Cruel to Horse?

Charles R. Elting of No. 75 Henry street was arrested on Thursday afternoon by Policeman Dunn on the complaint of Peter Bonesteel, who charged Mr. Elting with driving a horse unfit for use. This morning Mr. Elting was arraigned before Recorder Lang and the case was adjourned until Saturday morning. Mr. Elting said he was not guilty. Amos Van Erten was present in court in the interest of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Struck Not to Strike.

Evidently the clock in the steeple of the First Dutch Church has gone on a strike not to strike, for it is many and many a day since the up-town people have been cheered or hurried or dragged through the day or night, as the case might be, by the ringing of the hours by the church bell. Can't somebody "arbitrate" in the matter?

HUGHES, JR. READS FATHER'S STATEMENTS AT PLATTSBURG.

This photograph shows the men of the Republican presidential nominee reading a telegram containing some important statements made by his father in announcing his platform. Young Hughes is one of the most enthusiastic "rookies" in the preparedness camp at Plattsburg.

Man's Three Lives.
"A man lives three lives—youth, manhood and age," philosophically stated Professor Pate. "Youth is the rising sun of life, when he thinks of what a heck of a feller he is going to be; manhood is the sun at full meridian, when he is satisfied that he is indeed a heck of a feller; age is the setting sun, when he sits around and brags about what a heck of a feller he used to be."—Judge.

Expanding Feet.
Several negro waiters were standing at a railroad station in a southern town discussing the merits of one of their fellow craftsmen. "Dat nigger Henry sure am a hustler, but w'en he moves his feet dey look laik pancakes," said one. "Pancakes?" shout'd another. "W'y man, w'en dat nigger gets good an' gonn' dem feet o' his'n don't resemble no pancakes—dey's jess laik a embraller, all spread out."

In Nebraska in Early Days.
True cats, larger than the modern tiger, short-legged rhinoceroses, mastodons with tusks in both the upper and lower jaw and a great variety of wolflike carnivora made their home in Nebraska some years ago, or, to be exact, in the tertiary period when that state was an expanse of swampy lowland, covered with vegetation not unlike that of the Amazon wildernesses of the present day.

SHRINERS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

Seventy members of the Kingston Shriners' Association were present at the outing and chicken dinner held Thursday evening at Lake Katrine Inn. The members of the Shrine met at 8 o'clock at the Eagle Hotel and after a short parade through Wall street were taken by automobiles to Lake Katrine where the chicken dinner was served in excellent style by Mr. Cuneo, proprietor of the Inn.

Following the banquet the annual election of officers was held and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Aaron Cohen.
Vice president, William H. Van Etten.

Secretary and treasurer, Matthew H. Herzog.

Executive committee, Addison E. Dederick, William Johnston and Samuel Brown.

The members of the Shrine were kept in fine spirits by a short vaudeville sketch and entertainment and after the entertainment, dinner and election of officers, returned to their homes at eleven o'clock.

Kingston Day will be celebrated by Cypress Temple at Albany on June 25 when the Kingston members will journey to that city on the Day Line steamer leaving Kingston Point at 2:10 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time fifteen candidates from Kingston will become members of Cypress Temple and every member in the city is urged to be on hand on that day to help swell the delegation and make Kingston Day in Albany one to be long remembered. Arrangements will be made to have a band on hand to head the members, who will make a short parade before settling down to the serious part of the day's work, that of initiating the candidates.

SLAPS PLAYER LIMIT

McGraw Blames Rule for Defeat of Giants Last Year.

Twenty-One Men Are Enough for All Practical Purposes Says Pittsburgh Scribe—Magnates Are All Satisfied.

John McGraw of the New York Giants never tires of attacking the 21-player limit, which is in force in the National league. He laid upon it the blame for the Giants' failure to win last season. No sooner had his men dropped a couple of games this spring than he came out with another attack upon it. He claims that the American league managers have a big advantage over the National because they are allowed to carry 25 men.

McGraw might as well quit whining and yelping, for the chances are that never again will a National league club carry more players than are allowed it at present, writes Ralph S. Davis in the Pittsburgh Press. Twenty-one men are enough for all practical purposes, especially in view of the fact that the league allows a suspension list, on which may be carried all incapacitated players.

The Phillies did not complain last season about the number of men they carried, and McGraw would not have opened his mouth against the rule had his men won the pennant, instead of being a dismal failure—a failure because of the policy followed by the New York club in dealing with its men during war time rather than because of the player limit rule.

So far as the advantage of the American league clubs is concerned, it might be pointed out that most of the clubs in the Johnson circuit cut their squads below 25 last summer, and several of them went along on 21 men.

The magnates are perfectly satisfied with the present rule, and they have the final say in such matters. McGraw stands practically alone in his contention, and he can't accomplish much single-handed. It is not improbable that a similar regulation will be adopted by the American league at its next annual meeting.

The day of indolent idleness for the ball player is past. Time was when a half dozen men decorated the bench of each major league club throughout the summer, doing nothing for their salaries except to lead an occasional out-break against the umpires. The magnates came to the conclusion that money paid for such purposes was a willful waste, and they cut it out. It is not likely to be restored.

THINGS COBB CAN'T DO

After watching him for ten years we have found out several things the so-called wonderful Cobb can't do. Here they are:

1. Stretch a pass into a double.
 2. Steal second with the bases full.
 3. Handle foul balls smoothly.
 4. Score from second on a strike-out.
 5. Field bunts.
- Also, don't forget that Cobb is the weakest player in the American league tagging base-runners.—Chicago Evening Post.

BILL BINGHAM.

BILL BINGHAM IS THROUGH.

When he ran through the tape a bare yard and a half back of Ted Meredith in the intercollegiate half-mile championship last month, Bill Bingham, the greatest four-furlonger that Harvard University ever boasted of, closed an athletic career that he may well be proud of as long as he lives. 'Twas hoped that Bingham would stick to the game for a year or so as a member of the Boston Athletic Association track squad, but it's not to be so. The Crimson captain has decided to run no more, and so passes out as game and true a runner as ever trod the path.

But for one factor Bingham would be hailed as a world beater, and that factor is James Edward Meredith. As fine a performer as Bingham was, Ted, the super-runner, was a couple of strides stronger and faster. Bingham ran his full half in the amazing time of 1 minute 53 1/5 seconds, yet it was not good enough to win the championship that not so long ago used to be taken by two-minute performers. Bingham's experience is a forceful illustration of the fierce competition that has brought the intercollegiate meet up to its present standard.

CO-OPERATION

It means more in furnishing telephone service than in any other business, perhaps, for in selling a telephone company's product three people are concerned; the calling party, the operator and the called party.

When the caller consults the telephone directory before placing his call, gives his number clearly and makes proper acknowledgment when his number is repeated by the operator—

When the operator repeats the number distinctly and proceeds to establish the connection in the shortest possible space of time—

When the called party answers his telephone promptly—

When all remember that "The Voice With the Smile Wins"—

That's "CO-OPERATION," the kind that helps to bring to any community the best telephone service in the world.

Low Price Loses out Against Low Cost

PRICE may sell some things to farmers, but price alone is a poor argument compared with the records for low cost of operation made by Mogul kerosene engines.

Because they run on kerosene. Mogul engines produce farm power at the lowest possible cost.

You know what gasoline costs. You know, too, what kerosene costs. Take the difference—multiply it by the number of gallons of fuel an engine will consume in five years, figuring one pint of fuel per horse power per hour.

At what price must you buy a gasoline engine to make it cost you as little as a Mogul does? Could you afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift? See the dealer about this. He has the figures all worked out for you on all sizes of Mogul engines from 1 to 50 H. P.

THE MAVERICK TO HOLD FOLK FEAST

The annual community carnival which, under the name of the Maverick Folk-Feast is coming to be known as a Catskill classic, will be repeated this summer amid the same unique setting that has given it such fame. The Maverick, for the benefit of the uninitiate, is a little valley on the Hudson river slopes of the Catskills, eight miles from Kingston and within two miles of Woodstock, already widely known for its resident artist colony. A fraction of a mile from the landlocked reaches of the beautiful Ashokan reservoir, the scenic possibilities of the Maverick have been realized to the utmost by the artistic genius which has been interested in its development upon lines like unto that of no other spot in America.

In passing, it may be said, that Hervey White, author and poet, owns the Maverick and the ten little cottages nestled within its boundaries wherein are quartered musicians seeking the quiet places other than the conventional summer resorts so that they may work uninterruptedly and play about as they please when the spirit moves them. Among these musicians are Paul Kefer and Horace Britt, the New York cellists; Pierre Henrotte and John Grolle, violinists and Marguerite Hobart and Maria Miele-Narodny, sopranos, who are numbered among the more prominent permanents and their efforts have aided to the establishment of the highest reputation for Woodstock productions.

The inevitable community purpose, not as old as the institution itself, has been developed within the past two years and finds expression in an open air theater built in an abandoned stone quarry on the mountain side. The opening of this theater was the occasion for a demonstration of the talent available in the immediate vicinity. Woodstock painters decorated the theater and an orchestra and dancers were aided by a crowd of several thousand people in holding high carnival to mark the debut of this novel festival. The outgrowth has been a permanent institution modeled upon European fetes with picnic grounds and other attractions added. The original inspiration, the theater, will be the scene of the community festival as well as of a series of Sunday afternoon classical concerts.

To house audiences in the event of unfavorable weather prevailing, a hall has been built below the natural theater and here the painters in the community will arrange a weekly exhibition of pictures at a nominal admission charge. There is a pronounced economic theory behind the establishment as union rates will prevail for the musicians of the festival-orchestra while 75 per cent of the Sunday receipts will go to the performers and 25 per cent to the management. The Maverick cottages are apt to be engaged but boarding places or camping sites can be located upon application to Mr. White at Woodstock.

Such noted artists as Jean Sibelius, Reinhold Gliere, Arthur Nivina, Henry F. Gilbert, among the composers, Anna Pavlova, Lada, among the dancers, Edwin Markham and Ivan Narodny among the writers, Birge Harrison and Dering Woodward among the painters have been glad to offer the influence of their names.

Deadly Insult.

Among the offenders huddled in the dock before a police magistrate was a most respectable looking grocer. He was charged with assault.

"Why did you strike this man?" was the first question the magistrate put to him.

"Well, your honor," said the grocer, "what would you yourself do if you kept a grocery store and a man came in and asked whether he could take a moving picture of your cheese?"—New York Times.

(Chordeiles Virginianus)

Length, ten inches. Not to be confused with the whippoorwill. The latter lives in woodland and is chiefly nocturnal. The nighthawk often flies by day, when the white bar across the wing and its nasal cry are distinguishing.

Range: Breeds throughout most of the United States and Canada; winters in South America.

Habits and economic status: The skillful evolutions of a company of nighthawks as the birds gracefully cleave the air in intersecting circles is a sight to be remembered. So expert are they on the wing that no insect is safe from them, even the swift dragonfly being captured with ease. Unfortunately their erratic flight tempts men to use them for targets, and this inexcusable practice is seriously diminishing their numbers, which is deplorable, since no birds are more useful. This species makes no nest, but lays its two-spotted eggs on the bare ground, sometimes on the gravel roof of the city house. The nighthawk is a voracious feeder and is almost exclusively insectivorous. Some stomachs contained from 30 to 50 different kinds of insects, and more than 600 kinds have been identified from the stomachs thus far examined. From 500 to 1,000 ants are often found in a stomach. Several species of mosquitoes, including Anopheles, the transmitter of malaria, are eaten. Other well-known pests destroyed by the nighthawk are the Colorado potato beetle, cucumber beetles, chestnut, rice, clover-leaf and cotton-boll weevils, billbugs, bark beetles, squash bugs, and moths of the cotton worm.

Pat to the Rescue.

The New York householder engaged an Irishman fresh over from a remote district of his native land as general factotum. Pat gave much satisfaction, as he was quiet and smart, and always cheerful and obliging. Only one thing bothered him and that was his master's telephone, and many a suspicious look he gave it when in his master's study. One night they were awakened by a cry of "Fire!" and Pat, hastily dressing himself, hurried down stairs, and rushing to the telephone shouted: "Her, mister, ye'd better come out o' that, or ye'll be burnt to death."

Try These Timely Recipes.

Toast thin slices of stale bread, butter generously, and line a buttered pudding dish with them. Fill the dish with alternate layers of strawberries and toast, sifting sugar plentifully over them, then set the dish in the oven and bake about half an hour. Serve cold, with rich, thick, cream.

Strawberry Pie.

Line a deep pie plate with nice rich pastry and bake. Then fill with fresh ripe berries, adding plenty of sugar. Cover with a meringue made of white of two eggs whipped stiff with two or three tablespoons powdered sugar, and brown lightly in the oven.

Strawberry Cream Pie.

Line a plate with nice pastry rolled very thin, fill with ripe strawberries, adding sugar to sweeten, and bake quickly. Whip one cup thick sweet cream, add yolks of two eggs and sugar to taste, and whip until stiff, pour over the cooled pie and serve very cold.

Fairy Pudding.

To one and a half cups strawberry juice, either fresh or canned, add half cup water and put over the fire. When boiling add half cup sugar and two heaping tablespoons corn starch dissolved in a little cold water, and let boil until the starch is well cooked. Remove from the fire and while still boiling hot beat in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Serve cold with whipped cream. If the juice of canned fruit is used, that has already been sweetened, less sugar will be required.

Strawberry Dumplings.

Sift together one pint flour, one teaspoon each baking powder and salt, rub in two ounces butter, and mix to a soft dough with half cup milk. Roll out thin and cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Place three or four large strawberries in the center of each round, fold up the dough around them and pinch together into a dumpling. Lay smooth side up on a plate and either bake or steam them—the latter by setting the plate into a steamer over boiling water. Serve hot with cream and sugar.—Farm and Home.

Billy, Do.

As William bent over her fair face he whispered, "Darling, if I should say to you in French if I might kiss you, what would you say?"

Nancy, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed, "Billet doux."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Stock Up the Larder at Shader's Saturday Sale!

The meat barons and in fact all kinds of food producers have gone the limit in price-boosting, and there's no relief in sight. We realize that it is difficult for the man earning moderate wages to live as he did even before the outbreak of the European war, but we are unable to better his condition to any great extent. For Saturday's sale we have cut prices as deeply as business safety will permit, and we would advise the purchasing of as many provisions as possible to last well into next week wherever possible.

Enough Said.
A railroad lawyer who has had much to do with human nature says, "Never cross question an Irishman from the old sod." And he gave an illustration from his own experience:
A section hand had been killed by an express train, and his widow was suing for damages. The main witness swore positively that the locomotive whistle had not sounded until after the whole train had passed over his departed friend.
"See here, McGinnis," said I. "You admit that the whistle blew?"
"Yes, sir, it blew, sir."
"Now if that whistle sounded in time to give Michael warning the fact would be in favor of the company, wouldn't it?"
"Yes, sir, and Mike would be testifying here this day."

The Thing to Do.
The youngest had just been told the story of Daniel in the lions' den, and the question had been put to him:
"What do you think Daniel did the very first thing when he found he was saved from the lions?"
The child reflected a moment and then replied, "I suppose he telephoned home to his wife to tell her he was all right!"—New York Times.

NEW BUILDING ON BIJOU SITE

Plans are being prepared by Architect Betz, assisted by Kenyon Drake, for the erection of a three story building on the site of the building occupied by the Bijou Theatre, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago. Work has been begun on removing the wreckage from the site and work will shortly be started upon the erection of the new building. By Samuel Drake, the owner of the property. What business will be located in the new building is not known, as Mr. Drake has not, as yet, leased or rented to any firm.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Because of the Poughkeepsie boat races Saturday afternoon there will be no hostesses at the Twaalfskill Club.
The public is invited to attend a dance given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society at the Kingston Point Casino on Tuesday evening, June 20. A small admission will be charged, so that a large attendance is anticipated. Steve Miller's orchestra will furnish the latest dance music.

A surprise linen shower was tendered Miss Gussie Millens at her home on Meadow street by twenty-five of her friends, she being the recipient of many beautiful linens. A buffet luncheon was served at a late hour, which was followed by dancing and musical selections. Miss Millens, whose engagement to Harry B. Moss of New York city was formally announced, was given the well wishes of all her friends for future happiness.

To say that Mrs. C. L. Schleede was given a surprise at her home on Lindenman avenue on Wednesday evening, is putting it rather mildly, for Mrs. Schleede on hearing an unusual amount of tooting of automobile horns was amazed on going to the door to see touring cars coming up the driveway to her home, containing about 20 of her most intimate friends, all sending up cheer after cheer and wishing Mrs. Schleede many happy returns of the day, the occasion being her birthday. After the hostess had somewhat recovered from her surprise, a truck put in appearance which was loaded with all kinds of good things which kept Mrs. Schleede busy for on hour untiring packages amid peals of laughter from her guests, who enjoyed her astonishment as present after present was unwrapped. Among the many useful and pretty things received were several amounts of money, a gold embossed set of china dishes, cut glass, lace, linen, cut flowers, potted plants and a huge birthday cake prettily decorated and ornamented with candles. At 12 p. m. a bountiful supper was partaken of in the dining room, the decorations being red and white, the huge birthday cake being placed in the center of the table while on both ends were large vases filled with red and white carnations. At the side of each plate was a tiny red and white basket with a rosebud filled with chocolate nut creams. The guests departed for their homes in the wee hours in the morning in their cars, wishing Mrs. Schleede many more happy birthdays and vowing their host and hostess royal entertainers.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Sleepy Time Story About an Interesting Little Animal.
GAY FELLOW OF THE WOODS.

Amusing Ways of the Raccoon—Very Dainty in His Feeding—Catches Fish Like His Big Brother, the Bear. Things For Young Folks to Know—A Prize Baby.

This evening, said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and little Ned, I am going to tell you about

MOOWEESUK, THE COON.

Mooweesuk, the little coon, builds his house in the very quietest spot in the wood, far from inquisitive neighbors. When twilight shadows gather and the big, round, yellow moon creeps over the mountain little Mooweesuk comes out of his house to look about and feed on frogs and fishes.

The coon is a joyous little animal and is very particular to wash, when possible, all food before eating it. Coons are fond of many things, roots, clams, fish, the eggs of birds and sweet corn being much appreciated by these little wood folk.

When they go out for a walk the mother always leads the way, and the children follow, bear fashion, in single file behind her.

The coon can also walk on its hind feet, sitting up like brin.

Mooweesuk relishes most things found in the woods and when hungry will eat ants, worms and beetles, found by grubbing in hollow logs. Coons are very fond of sweet sap, turtles and watercress and wintergreen berries. In order to get the turtle meat they drop a stone upon its shell and crack it. The little chaps also relish chicken and pumpkin seeds.

The coon has a very clever way of catching his fish. Like the bear, he knows how to flip it out of the water with his paw. But in addition to this he has learned how to attract the fish to the surface by dipping his whiskers into the water and moving them slightly. Mr. Finny is a bit curious, comes too close to the surface and is flipped out of the water by Mooweesuk's paw.

The coon makes a most entertaining pet, as he is full of mischief and a droll little creature and has a childish pleasure in new playthings.

Presence of Mind.

A boy in northern Alabama recently, while coming from the postoffice along a country road, saw on the other side of a narrow valley and a large stream over which there was no bridge the cabin of a neighbor beginning to catch fire at one end. The lad yelled an alarm, but the inmates, who he rightly believed were at supper and whom he could glimpse through an open door, failed to hear him. He was carrying some rolled papers that had come in the mail. Having seen or heard of a megaphone he quickly tore off wrapper, rolled the broad sheets into a cone and began to roar through the little end: "Maynard, Maynard! Fire! Fire! Fire!" This the people heard, or enough of the strange noise to excite their curiosity, and they came out to discover the flames and quickly put them out. The boy may have been given credit for quick thinking; he certainly deserved it.

people took part. John Ryan, eight months old, who was adjudged the most perfect baby, won the first prize, a gold cup. The lady who is holding John in her arms is Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, who gave the cup to John. Ten other babies received gold medals. The first thing Baby John did when Mrs. Hearst gave him the cup was to try to put it in his mouth. He failed because his mouth was too small. The hundreds of other babies present looked on, but without the slightest evidence of envy.

MANAGER HOOK HAS AN ALFALFA DAY

Also the Farm Bureau Ponce Car Seems to Have Done Some Hill Climbing—Success or Failure Seems to Have Depended on Seed.

Tuesday, June 13, was one of the busy days of the season for Manager Hook, of the Farm Bureau, when several of the farms in the county where trial acres of alfalfa had been planted last season, were inspected. Several new plots of alfalfa will be planted this year in co-operation with the Farm Bureau and during the season they will be visited and suggestions for their care will be offered by Mr. Hook. Last season several plots were planted and in many cases the crop this year is good, especially where the northern grown genuine Grimm seed was used; where the common seed was used the stand was often poor.

At the farm of Jules Bruchaud of Olive Bridge, where genuine northern Grimm seed was planted, the stand was found excellent, considering the high altitude and severe weather. Frank Roosa, who is the farmer in charge of the extensive farm of Mr. Bruchaud, had three acres seeded last year. The Bruchaud farm is run along modern scientific lines and this year a small herd of pure bred Guernsey cattle will be added and a small dairy will be added to this well equipped farm. The next farm visited by the manager was that of Wilson Riseley at Mt. Pleasant, where Mr. Riseley had put in one acre of alfalfa last year but at harvest time this year found an excellent stand of clover, the alfalfa having failed to grow. In altitudes and severe weather such as exist here none but the best northern grown genuine Grimm seed is recommended. Mr. Riseley will sow another acre this year and using his experience of last year and with the supervision of the manager of the Farm Bureau, will endeavor to get this crop firmly established on his magnificent farm. Mr. Riseley has one of the best farms in the upper Esopus valley and has adopted up-to-date lines in his work.

A trip over the mountain from Glenford to Woodstock brought the manager to the farm of Mrs. Bertha Poole Weyl. Three acres of Grimm seed was sown and looked after by Manager Hook. The stand is good. George Burt is also a believer in alfalfa and other modern farm problems and has one acre of alfalfa. Mr. Burt has taken up modern farming and believes in up-to-date farming. At the farm of Charles L. Shufeldt at Zena, where the common alfalfa seed was sown last year, the crop was practically a failure and this season northern grown seed will be sown by Mr. Shufeldt and the plot will be worked with the supervision of Manager Hook, perhaps in no other place in the county has the failure of sowing common seed been so evident as on the farm of Mr. Shufeldt. Had the better seed been sown the stand would have probably been much more sturdy.

The three acres of common seed sown on the farm of N. M. Nash at Woodstock was also inspected and in general the stand was not good, perhaps one-third of a crop. This year northern grown seed will be planted in co-operation with the Farm Bureau.

All of the plots planted this year will be watched by Manager Hook and data taken, which will be used in the future for the benefit of the farmers who are becoming interested in alfalfa. The best time for sowing alfalfa seed in this locality is from the last of June until the middle of August, although some excellent crops have been secured by later sowing.

PLATFORM REPORTED TO CONVENTION

National platform of the Democratic party as reported to the convention at St. Louis:

The Democratic party, in national convention assembled, adopts the following declaration to the end that the people of the United States may both realize the achievements wrought by four years of Democratic administration and be apprised of the policies to which the party is committed for the further conduct of national affairs.

Record of Achievements.

We endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson. It speaks for itself. It is the best exposition of sound Democratic policy at home and abroad.

We challenge comparison of our record, our pledges and our constructive legislation with those of any party of any time.

We found our country hampered by special privilege, a vicious tariff, obsolete banking laws and an inelastic currency. Our foreign affairs were dominated by commercial interests for their selfish ends. The Republican party, despite repeated pledges, was impotent to correct these wrongs which had entered under our administration, under a leadership which has never faltered, these abuses have been corrected and our people have been freed therefrom.

Our archaic banking and currency system, prolific of panic and disaster under Republican administration—long the refuge of the money trust—has been supplanted by the Federal Reserve Act, a true democracy of credit under government control, already proved a financial bulwark in a world crisis, mobilizing our resources, placing abundant credit at the disposal of legitimate industry, and making a currency panic impossible.

We have created a Federal Trade Commission to accommodate the perplexing questions arising under the anti-trust laws that monopoly should be strangled at its birth and legitimate industry encouraged. Fair competition in business is now assured.

We have effected an adjustment of the tariff, adequate for revenue under peace conditions, and fair to the consumer and to the producer. We have adjusted the burdens of taxation so that even incomes bear their equitable share. Our revenues have been sufficient in times of world stress and will largely exceed the expenditures of the current fiscal year.

We have lifted human labor from the category of commodities and have secured to the workman the right of voluntary association for his protection and welfare. We have protected the rights of the laborer against the unwarranted issuance of writs of injunction, and have guaranteed to him the right of trial by jury in cases of alleged contempt committed outside of the presence of the court. We have advanced the parcels post to genuine efficiency, enlarged the postal savings system, added ten thousand delivery routes, and extensions, thus reaching two and one-half millions additional people, improved the postal service in every branch, and for the first time in our history, placed the post office system on a self-supporting basis with actual surplus in 1913, 1914 and 1915.

Economic Freedom.

The reforms which were most obviously needed to clear away special privilege, prevent unfair discrimination and release the energies of all men of all ranks and advantages, have been effected by recent legislation. We must now remove, so far as possible, every remaining element of unrest and uncertainty from the path of the business men of America and secure for them a continued period of quiet, assured and confident prosperity.

Tariff.

We reaffirm our belief in the doctrine of a tariff for the purpose of providing sufficient revenue for the operation of the government economically administered and unreservedly endorse the Underwood tariff law as truly exemplifying that doctrine. We recognize that tariff rates are necessarily subject to change to meet changing conditions in the world's production and trade. The events of the last two years have brought about many momentous changes. In some respects, their effects are yet conjectural and wait to be disclosed, particularly in regard to our foreign trade. Two years of war which has directly involved most of the chief industrial nations of the world, and which has indirectly affected the life and duty of all nations, are bringing about economic changes more varied and far-reaching than the world has ever before experienced. In order to ascertain just what these changes may be, the Democratic congress is providing for a non-partisan tariff commission to make impartial and thorough study of every economic fact that may throw light either upon our past or upon our future fiscal policy with regard to the imposition of taxes on imports or with regard to the changed and changing conditions under which our trade is carried on. We cordially endorse this timely proposal, and declare ourselves in sympathy with the principle and purpose of shaping legislation within that field in accordance with established facts rather than in accordance with the demands of selfish interests or upon information provided largely, if not exclusively by them.

Americanism

The part that the United States will play in the new day of international relationship which is now upon us will depend upon our preparation and our character. The Democratic party therefore recognizes the assertion and triumphant demonstration of the indivisibility and coherent strength of the nation as the supreme issue of this day in which the whole world faces the crisis of manifold change. It summons all men, of whatever origin or creed, who would count themselves American, to join in making clear to all the world the unity and consequent power of America. This is an issue of patriotism. To fail to reach this point would be to fail to reach the just settlement of commercial claims. It has made the honor and ideals of the United States its standard alike in negotiation and action.

Pan-American Concord.

We recognize now as we have already recognized, a definite and common interest between the United States and the other peoples and republics of the Western Hemisphere in all matters of national independence and free political development. We favor the establishment and maintenance of the closest relations of amity and mutual helpfulness between the United States and the republics of the American continent for the support of peace and the promotion of a common prosperity. To that end we favor all measures which may be necessary to facilitate intimate intercourse and promote commerce between the United States and her neighbors to the south of us, and such international understandings as may be practicable and suitable to accomplish these ends. We commend the action of the Democratic administration in holding the Pan-American financial conference at Washington in May, 1915, and organizing the International High Commission which represented the recent meeting of representatives of the Latin American republics at Buenos Ayres, April, 1916, which have so greatly promoted the friendly relations between the people of the Western Hemisphere.

Mexico.

The Monroe Doctrine is reasserted as a principle of Democratic faith. That doctrine guarantees the independent republics of the two Americas against aggression from another continent. It implies as well, the more scrupulous regard upon our part of the sovereignty of each of them. We court their good will. We seek not to despoil them. The want of a stable, responsible government in Mexico, capable of repressing and punishing marauders and bandit bands, who have not only taken the lives and seized the property of American citizens in that country, but have insolently invaded our soil, made war upon and murdered our people thereon, has rendered it necessary temporarily to occupy, by our armed forces, a portion of the territory of that friendly state. Until, by the restoration of law and order therein a repetition of such incursions is improbable, the necessity for their remaining will continue, they must remain. Intervention, implying as it does, military subjugation, is revolting to the people of the United States notwithstanding the provocation to that course has been great and should be resorted to, if at all, only as a last resort. The stubborn resistance of the president and his advisors to every demand and suggestion to enter upon it, is creditable alike to them and to the people in whose name he speaks.

Preparedness.

Along with the proof of our character as a nation must go the proof of our power to play the part that legitimately belongs to us. The people of the United States love peace. They respect the rights and covet the friendship of all other nations. They desire neither any additional territory nor any advantage which cannot be peacefully gained by their skill, industry or their enterprise, but they insist upon having absolute freedom of national life and policy, and feel that they owe it to themselves and to the role of spirited independence which it is their sole ambition to play, that they should render themselves secure against the hazard of interference from any quarter and should be able to protect their rights upon the seas or in any part of the world. We therefore, favor the maintenance of an army fully adequate to the requirements of order, of safety, and of the protection of the nation's rights, the fullest development of modern methods, of sea coast defense, and the maintenance of an adequate reserve of citizens trained to arms and prepared to safeguard the people and territory of the United States against any danger of hostile action which may unexpectedly arise; and a fixed policy for the continuous development of our navy worthy to support the great naval traditions of this nation and fully equal to the international tasks which the United States hopes and expects to take a part in performing. The plans and enactments of the present congress afford substantial proof of our purpose in this exigent matter.

International Relations.

The Democratic administration has throughout the present war scrupulously and successfully held to the old paths of neutrality and to the peaceful pursuit of the legitimate objects of our national life, which statesmen of all parties and creeds have prescribed for themselves in American since the beginning of our history. But the circumstances of the last two years have revealed the necessities of international action which no former generation could have foreseen. We hold that it is the duty of the United States to use its power not only to make itself secure at home, but also to make secure its just interests throughout the world and both for this end and in the interest of humanity, to assist the peace and justice securing settled.

We believe that every people has the right to choose the sovereign under which it shall live; that the small states of the world have a right to enjoy from other nations the same respect for their sovereignty and for their territorial integrity that great and powerful nations exact and insist upon; and that the world has a right to be free from every disturbance of its peace and that has its origin in aggression or disregard of the rights of peoples and nations; and we believe that the time has come when it is the duty of the United States to join with the other nations of the world in a feasible association that will effect in accordance with established facts rather than in accordance with the demands of selfish interests or upon information provided largely, if not exclusively by them.

The present administration has consistently sought to act upon and reaffirm in its conduct of the foreign affairs of the nation the principle that should be the object of any association of the nations formed to secure the peace of the world and maintenance of national and individual rights. It has followed the highest American traditions. It has preferred respect for the fundamental rights of smaller states even to property interests, and has secured the friendship of the people of these states for the United States by refusing to make a material interest an excuse for the assertion of superior power against the dignity

Government Employment.

We hold that the health, life and strength of the women, men and children of the nation are its greatest asset, and that in conservation of these the federal government wherever it acts as the employer of labor, should both on its own account and as an example, put into effect the following principles of just employment:

- 1.—A living wage for all employees.
- 2.—A working day not to exceed eight hours, with one day of rest in seven.
- 3.—The adoption of safety appliances and the establishment of thoroughly sanitary conditions of labor.
- 4.—Adequate compensation for industrial accidents.
- 5.—The standards of the "uniform child labor law" wherever minors are employed.
- 6.—Such provisions for decency, comfort and health in the employment of women as should be accorded the mothers of the race.
- 7.—An equitable retirement law providing for the retirement of superannuated and disabled employees of the civil service, to the end that a higher standard of efficiency may be maintained.

Merchant Marine.

Immediate provision should be made for the development of the carrying trade of the United States. Our foreign commerce has in the past been subject to many unnecessary and vexatious obstacles in the way of legislation of Republican congresses. Until the recent Democratic tariff legislation it was hampered by unreasonable burdens of taxation. Until the recent banking legislation, it had at its disposal few of the necessary instruments of international credit and exchange. Until the formulation of the pending act to promote the construction of a merchant marine, it lacked even the prospect of adequate carriage by sea. We favor the extension of the pending Shipping Bill and favor all such additional measures of constructive or remedial legislation as may be necessary to restore our flag to the seas and to provide further facilities for our foreign commerce, particularly such laws as may be made to remove unfair conditions of competition in the dealings of American merchant vessels with competitors in foreign markets.

Conservation.

For the safe-guarding and quickening of the life of our people, we favor the conservation and development of the natural resources of the country by means of a policy which shall be positive rather than negative, a policy which shall not withhold such resources from development but which, while permitting and encouraging their use, shall prevent both waste and monopoly of their exploitation, and we earnestly favor the passage of acts which will affirm the declaration of the platform of 1912 on this subject. The policy of reclaiming our arid lands should be steadily adhered to.

The Administration and the Farmer.

We favor the vigorous prosecution of investigations and plans to render farming more profitable and country life more healthful, comfortable and attractive, and we believe that this should be done by the action of the states as well as of the federal government. With all its recent improvement, farming still lags behind other occupations in development as a business, and the advantages of an advancing civilization have not accrued to rural communities in a fair proportion. Much has been accomplished in this field by the present administration—far more than under any previous administration. In the federal reserve act of the last congress, and the rural credits act of the present congress, the machinery has been created which will make credit available to the farmer constantly and readily, and he has at last been put upon a footing of equality with the merchant and the banker in securing the capital necessary to carry on his enterprises. Grades and standards necessary to the intelligent and successful conduct of the business of agriculture have also been established, or in the course of being established by law. The long-needed cotton futures act, passed by the sixty-third congress, has now been passed by the present administration, an excuse for the assertion of superior power against the dignity needed, and a permissive warehouse bill, intended to provide better storage facilities and to enable the farmer to obtain certificates upon which he may secure advances of money, have been passed by the house of representatives, have been favorably reported to the senate, and will probably become law during the present session of congress. Both houses have passed a good roads measure which will be of far-reaching benefit to all agricultural communities. Above all, the most extraordinary and significant progress has been made under the direction of the department of agriculture in extending and perfecting practical farm demonstration work which is so rapidly substituting scientific for empirical farming. But it is also necessary that rural activities should be better directed through co-operation and organization, that unfair methods of competition should be eliminated and the conditions requisite for the just, orderly and economical marketing of farm products created. We approve the Democratic administration for having emphatically directed attention for the first time to the essential interests of agriculture in farm-making, rural life and finance, for creating the office of markets and rural organization in connection with the department of agriculture and for extending the co-operative machinery necessary or conveying information to farmers by means of demonstrations.

Protection of Citizens.

We again declare that the sacred rights of American citizenship must be preserved at home and abroad and that no treaty with any other government shall receive the sanction of our government which does not expressly recognize the absolute equality of all our citizens, irrespective of race, creed, or previous nationality, and which does not recognize the right of expatriation. The American government should protect American citizens in their rights not only at home but abroad, and any country having a government should be held to strict accountability for any wrongs done them, either to person or property. At the earliest practical opportunity our country should strive earnestly for peace among the warring nations of Europe and seek to hasten the adoption of the fundamental principle of justice and humanity that all men shall enjoy equality of rights and freedom from discrimination in the lands wherein they dwell.

Prison Reform.

We demand that the modern principles of prison reform be applied in our federal penal system. We favor such work for prisoners as shall give them training in remunerative occupations so that they may make an honest living when released from prison; the setting apart of the net wages of the prisoner to be paid to his dependent family or to be reserved for his own use upon his release; the liberal extension of the principles for the federal parole law, with due regard both to the welfare of the prisoner and the interests of society; the adoption of the probation system, especially in the case of first offenders not convicted of serious crimes.

Waterways and Flood Control.

We renew the declaration in our Baltimore platform relating to the development of our waterways. The recent devastation of the lower Mississippi valley and several other sections by floods accentuates the movement for the regulation of river flow by additional bank and levee projects below, and diversion, storage and control of the flood-waters above, and their utilization for beneficial purposes in the reclamation of arid and swamp lands and development of water power, instead of permitting the floods to continue as heretofore agents of destruction. We hold that the control of the Mississippi river is a national problem. The preservation of the depth of its waters for purposes of navigation, the building of levees and works of bank protection to maintain the integrity of its channel and prevent the overflow of its valley resulting in the interruption of interstate commerce, the disorganization of the mail service and the enormous loss of life and property, impose an obligation which alone can be discharged by the federal government.

Alaska.

It has been and will be the policy of the Democratic party to enact laws necessary for the speedy development of Alaska and its great natural resources.

Territories.

We favor granting to the people of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico the traditional territorial government accorded to all territories of the United States since the beginning of our government, and we believe the officials appointed to administer the government of these several territories should be qualified by previous bona fide residence.

Candidates.

We unreservedly endorse our president and vice-president, Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, and Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana, who have performed the functions of their great offices faithfully and impartially and with distinguished ability.

Economy and the Budget.

We demand careful economy in all expenditures for the support of the government and to that end favor a return by the house of representatives to its former practice of initiating and preparing all appropriation bills through a single committee chosen from its membership in order that the responsibility may be centered, expenditures standardized and made uniform, and waste and duplication in the public service as much as possible avoided. We favor this as a practicable first step towards a budget system.

Philippine Islands.

We heartily endorse the provisions of the bill recently passed by the house of representatives, further promoting self-government in the Philippine Islands as being in fulfillment of the policy declared by the Democratic party in its last national platform, and we reiterate our endorsement of the purpose of ultimate independence for the Philippine Islands, expressed in the preamble of that measure.

Woman Suffrage.

We recommend the extension of the franchise to the women of the country by the states upon the same terms as to men.

Origin of Music.

The origin of music is lost in antiquity. Among civilized people it probably originated among the Egyptian priests, who employed this art in their religious rites and ceremonies. From the Egyptians the art passed on to the Greeks and Romans and so on to modern nations.—New York American.

A King's Ransom.

The expression "worth a king's ransom," though generally supposed to mean the ransoms paid for a king, more probably refers to that paid to a king. In early times, when armies received practically no regular pay, the soldier's reward was the booty taken from the vanquished, each soldier had a right to the bodies as well as the goods of the prisoners he captured. The conqueror might slay his prisoner, sell him to slavery or set him at liberty on payment of a ransom. But, though it was the common practice in feudal times for the individual captor to receive the ransom for prisoners of low degree, those for princes or great nobles were always paid to the king; hence a king's ransom.

Chameleon Beaches.

The beaches of Snails Island, in the Gulf of Mexico, change color twice daily with the tides. The sands are really of a golden color, and when the rising tide spreads the wide beach still remains gold, but when the tide ebbs they look quite purple, and this is accounted for by myriads of tiny purple snails crawling in the wake of the ebbing tide. It is to these snails that the island owes its name.

Glass Cups.

The first glass cups were made at Alexandria. Some were colored like Bohemian glass and decorated with glass pastes, imitating precious stones and cameos. Some were opaque, others clear as crystal and still others formed of opaque layers welded together like the famous Portland vase, in which the white upper layer had been cut away like a cameo, leaving a blue ground around the figures.

Watered.

"If you are looking for bargains," said the broker, "I can suit you. I can offer you some stocks at 10 cents a share."

A Fitting Fine.

"There's a hard magistrate in that court."

What did he do?

"A couple brought before him were accused of spooning in the park, and he made them fork over."—Baltimore American.

SECRETS HIDDEN IN THE SUN.

Changes in Intensity and Quality of Solar Rays Cause Effects That Bother Meteorologists—Why Forecasts of Experts Often Go Astray.

The most imperfect science in meteorology. The margin of error in its calculations is sometimes enormous—sufficient to completely reverse a prediction.

The weather bureau is a useful institution, based upon an incomplete system of correlated facts of observation, which are scientific as far as they go. But there are elements concerned in the production of weather about which the methods of meteorology give no information.

There are birds, insects and four footed animals which have an incomparably greater foreknowledge of weather changes than the entire scientific corps of the agricultural department possesses.

When the predictors of the weather bureau give warning of an approaching storm they act on very much the same principle as that on which a railroad time table is based. A train having been announced by telegraph as started on a given line will arrive in regular succession at certain points along that line, and a station agent at any given point can, if no accident intervenes, foretell the moment of the train's arrival at his station.

Storm centers, or cyclones, moving across the country are in some ways comparable to trains following a time schedule. But unfortunately they do not run on rails, they are not driven by an invariable force, they are subject to interruptions and obstacles of many kinds, and instead of always keeping the track and following the course they frequently wander vaguely about or take an unexpected turn or else fade away like exhausted whirls in water.

In fact, the weather bureau predictors are in the same quandary in which train dispatchers would find themselves if railroad tracks were shifting lines, continually drifting this way and that, getting crossed and entangled or sinking into suddenly formed quagmires and thus disappearing for good.

Meteorology as a science of weather prediction fails just because it possesses too few facts. With the aid of the telegraph the weather bureau can if lucky follow the trail of a storm center across the United States, but it cannot tell just how a new storm is born nor just when or where it will begin its course.

The one only great fact on which it bases its whole system of prediction is the general tendency of cyclonic disturbances in this country to travel eastward with a northerly trend, while storms originating around the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea usually come up the coast.

But the official weather prognosticators are as much in the dark as the ordinary citizen concerning what is going to happen in the atmosphere next week, and they really know nothing about any storm until after it has begun its career, and then all that they know is the course that it will take—in case it doesn't happen to change its mind.

A slight variation in the intensity, or quality, of the radiation received from the sun might account for sudden changes or abnormal weather, and recent investigations show that such variations occur, but what is needed is more accurate knowledge about them and their effects. Heat and light are only two of an infinite number of forms of vibration sent to us from the sun. Everybody knows that when the weather records show that two days are precisely alike in temperature, in humidity, etc., human nerves prove that they are vastly unlike in some unnamed peculiarity which affects the springs of life.

The spider busily and confidently spinning her webs in preparation for a spell of fine weather which some unerring mechanism of foreknowledge within her enables her to detect is a surer guide than a barometer. She responds to vibrations as yet only guessed at by science, and so perhaps do the supersensitive nerves of many human creatures.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

WEATHER SCIENCE

It Is Good as Far as It Goes, but It Doesn't Go Far Enough.

SECRETS HIDDEN IN THE SUN.

Changes in Intensity and Quality of Solar Rays Cause Effects That Bother Meteorologists—Why Forecasts of Experts Often Go Astray.

The Limit in Politeness.

A certain professor is unusually courteous, both in and out of the classroom. One day he made a bonfire in his back garden. The flames, creeping rapidly through the dry stubble, frightened him, and he believed his house was in imminent danger. So he ran wildly down the street, crying at the top of his voice:

"Help! Fire! Fire! Help!"

And then, as if thinking himself too abrupt and urgent, he politely added, so his neighbors say:

"That is, all those who can conveniently do so."—New York Times.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

James Stoenen, a former resident of Poughkeepsie, died suddenly Thursday at the home of his son in this city. He formerly managed a tea store there. A widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

Mrs. Mary Adams died suddenly on Tuesday afternoon of acute indigestion at her home in Highland. She was 74 years old, and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Winchester Howell of Boka and Mrs. Minnie Anderson of Highland, and one son, Harry of Highland. The funeral was held this afternoon from the Highland Methodist Church.

The death of Mrs. Mary Smith of Schodack Landing, formerly of this city, occurred at her home on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Smith, who was about eighty years of age, had been ill for some time. She is survived by her daughter, Miss Ada Beebe, with whom she resided, and a niece, Mrs. Arthur H. Snyder of this city. The funeral services were held at the Schodack Landing home on Thursday and the interment took place in Montrose cemetery, this city, this afternoon.

The funeral of Earl B. Schoonmaker was held from his late residence, No. 284 Washington avenue, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, and at 9:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Bridgman, the rector, who gave a most eloquent and instructive talk on the gospel of the day, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me although he be dead shall live." The superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company, John E. Mahar, and his staff attended the funeral in a body. The bearers were Peter J. Falvey, Patrick Murphy, Edward Doyle and Harry Kernan. The deceased was born in Stone Ridge in 1872, and after being educated at the school there and in Kingston, he came an agent in 1910 for the Prudential Insurance Company. Owing to his success in that work within a year he was promoted by the company to be the assistant superintendent at its Kingston branch and came to this city, which had been his home until his death. Those who knew him, appreciated him as a man of true worth.

The Rev. William B. Sleep died at Rhinecliff on Monday after a service of more than five years as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hillside. He did his usual work on Sunday and during the night was seized with an attack of acute indigestion. Being alone in the parsonage, he was unable to secure assistance until Monday morning when the best of medical attention was obtained notwithstanding which, however, he died at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon. The funeral was held at noon on Thursday, the Rev. William F. Compton, district superintendent, officiating assisted by several other pastors. Prayer was offered at the house by the Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase. At the church Scripture selections were read by the Rev. Harry Cornford and the Rev. M. C. Bennett. A solo, "O Love that will not let me go" was sung by Mrs. Wells of Rhinebeck and prayer was offered by the Rev. J. H. Michell. Addresses were given by the Rev. Mr. Compton and the Rev. R. E. Wilson. "A Side With" was sung by Mrs. Wells after which the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Compton. Interment was made at Hartsdale, near Great Barrington, Mass.

The funeral of the late William F. Brodbeck was held from the Church of the Holy Spirit on Thursday afternoon, the church being crowded by his many friends who gathered to pay their respects to the deceased. The services were in charge of the Rev. J. J. Bott, rector of the church, while Harry P. Dodge presided at the organ. Two very impressive features of the service were solos, one being sung by Mrs. Paul R. Fish, the wife of the former rector of the church, who sang "Ave Maria," and the other solo being "One Sweetly Solenn Thought" by William R. Anderson. The floral offerings were numerous and handsome, among them being a large cross from the vestry of the church, and a beautiful piece from the chapter to which Mr. Brodbeck belonged and also one from the Masonic order. The remains reposed in a dull finished solid mahogany casket which was trimmed with bronze trimmings, while on the casket were placed the sword and chapeau which were used by Mr. Brodbeck in his Masonic work. The bearers were Thurston Murray, Sanford Magee, Alfred Tompkins, George Wilson, William W. Williams and E. W. Hathaway. The remains were taken to Hobart, N. Y., on the early train on the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, where the body was laid to rest in the family plot in Locust Hill Cemetery. Stock & Cordis having charge of the obsequies.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—Many stocks showed declines at the opening of the market today, but the tone was steady and after the first sales, an upward movement was in order. Most interest was attached to the trading in Union Pacific, which, after opening 1/4 lower at 137 1/2, rose to 138 1/2. Declines followed by brisk advances were noted in many of the other railway stocks, including Reading and Southern Pacific. Butte and Superior sold ex-dividend 10 1/2 per cent at 78, against 92 1/2 at the close yesterday with the dividend on a loss of over 3 points, but later this stock rallied to 79 1/2. Utah Copper sold ex-dividend $3.00 at 80, a net loss of 1/2.

Covering of shorts and outside buying was noted in the late forenoon. Mexican Petroleum advanced from 104 1/4 to 106 1/4, and Anaconda from 55 1/4 to 56. Pressed Steel Car rose 1/4 to 51 1/4, and Crucible Steel 1 1/4 to 87 1/4. Butte and Superior rose to 80 1/2. Money loaning at 3 per cent.

Trading was light and the tone was irregular in the late afternoon. American Zinc was exceptionally active and strong. The copper stocks were heavy, Anaconda and Utah yielding under small sales and Crucible Steel, after selling at 87 1/2, dropped to 85. St. Paul declined 1/2 to 99 1/4, and Reading sold down a point to 104 1/4.

The final tone was weak. Reading declined 2 points in the final dealings to 103 and declines of a point were recorded in St. Paul, American Beet Sugar and nearly all the other active issues. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Well I am thankful to say that spring cleaning, painting and paper hanging is all finished at my house," said the street corner politician, as he heaved a profound sigh of relief. He continued "Talking about paper hanging I always used to wonder why there was so many different colors and styles in wall paper displayed in the local store windows handling that line, until I was called on to help select the paper for our house, and while I was helping—that is, I looked on and made suggestions to the women folks that were invariably ignored, although they had urged me to come and help them, and I lost considerable time from business doing so—to see the different shades of color selected by others who were also hunting the new spring styles in paper.

"It is queer what funny taste some people do have in selecting wall paper. Now I could pick out paper that would hit me just right in about half an hour at the most for the entire house, while some folks take weeks to make a selection, and then are not satisfied. I also found out that the plain paper, as it is called, is rising in price, and as it is if costs more than the figured paper although I did not know that until I went with the folks to watch them pick out paper I did not like, but had to say I did. For that matter all wall paper is said to be bound on the up grade in price due to the war in Europe. I hope, however, that the war will be settled long before it is time for me to have to buy any more wall paper.

"But then it takes all kinds of people and all kinds of paper to suit all kinds of taste as an old woman used to say. That that is so just take the old 'Long House' on lower Broadway for example. It is now vacant and all of the tenants have moved to other localities. If you want to see some fancy action in wall papers just get some one to take you through some of the rooms of that historic old building and believe me Sunday funny papers in all their glory have nothing on the walls of some of those rooms when it comes to colors.

"It would seem that every tenant who ever resided there had an entirely different taste in selecting wall paper, and also in having it put on after they got in. Some rooms are decorated with border paper only. By that I mean that instead of having the usual side wall paper placed on the wall with a border atop of it the entire room is papered with border paper.

"This is true in the case where the rooms had been occupied by colored tenants. As every one knows the colored people have an eye for color, and some of those rooms are certainly adorned with dizzy colors. Huge screaming borders of bright colors run riot up and down the walls and even across the ceilings, and the brighter and more glaring the color the more beautiful the room appeared to the tenant I suppose.

"But what is taste anyway if it is the pleasing of the majority whether it be in clothes, pictures, wall paper or what not. That being so anyone has the right, for which he or she is duly thankful, to decorate the walls of the home as it suits them. This is a free country, and you don't have to use wall paper if you don't want to. Use whitewash.

"Harmony is what some say is the key note of taste. By that they mean that when picking out wall paper get it to harmonize in color scheme with the floor covering and the furniture in the room. Sounds good, doesn't it, but wait until you try it out.

"Take my advice, however, when you do get wall paper to have an expert put it on the wall. Don't leave it up to some member of the family who thinks he knows how to do it. I know a family who decided to let the 'old man,' as he was affectionately dubbed by his children, put the paper up, and then they all stood around and offered advice on how it should be done. By the time the various suggestions had been carried out,

RU-BER-OID
ROOFING
COSTS MORE—WEARS LONGER

RU-BER-OID is the ideal roofing because it meets the most exacting requirements. It has the endorsement of underwriters and fire department officials the world over as a safe roofing.

And RU-BER-OID is permanently weatherproof and water-proof, and seems wear-proof. Foundries, railroads and chemical works employ it under conditions where sparks and fumes would soon destroy other roofs. It contains no coal tar or asphaltum oils.

Hundreds of RU-BER-OID Roofs are still watertight after more than 20 years of hard wear.

The U. S. Appellate Court has enjoined imitators from using the name "Rubberoid" or any similar name as the trade name or brand of their roofing.

We sell the genuine, with the "Ru-ber-old Man" (shown above) on every roll. We have it in slate gray and in Tile Red or Copper Green.

Come in and examine it.

Flag Raising at West Park.

A beautiful white pine pole, 46 feet in length, has been set up in the park of Ascension Church by men of the parish, and on Wednesday the rector, with about 40 of the neighbors, gathered for the flag raising. Standing with the colors ready it was proposed that each one present pull the cord a few feet, whilst uttering some worthy sentiment. All joined in praise of Old Glory and allegiance to all that it represented. After the flag had touched the peak the Star Spangled Banner was sung by everyone, and after refreshments had been served all departed with words of love for the dear old flag. The sentiment of James A. McKee, who has attained the age of 90, is well worth preservation. "May this be a country to love the stars and stripes until the resurrection, and may Jesus give the dominion to hoist the flag as long as he leaves him on the earth. Amen." The rector spoke of the flag as a symbol of the field for fidelity, the white stars of hope ever at the top of the mast.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Nicodemus Cullop, a pitching hireling of Cap Huston and Col. Ruppert, is living up to predictions made for him by his Federal League boosters of days gone by.

Nick never amounted to an awful lot when he was heaving them from the portside in behalf of the Cleveland club. Some days he pitched good ball—and on other occasions the natives, after watching his efforts resorted to profanity.

When Nick hopped from O. B. into the waiting arms of the flirtatious Feds, no one in Cleveland wept over it. The residents of Ohio's fairest municipality regarded Nick's loss as nothing worthy of grief. But at that moment up rose George Stoval, who spoke thusly:

"Nick is just reaching his full development. Before the season of 1915 has skidded down along the vales of history, Nick will be regarded as a regular pitcher."

Cullop Silences Skeptics.

When the complete returns were in for the season, it was found that Nick had compiled a pitching average superior by far to that of any other southpaw in the Gilmore outfit.

"But that ain't nuthin'," exclaimed the skeptical. "Being the best left-hander among the Feds isn't worth getting excited about. That guy Cullop is just a good buster—that's all."

In due course of time, Nick became the property of the Yankees. It cost Huston and Ruppert something like $12,500 to acquire him, whereas, many, many persons ejaculated:

"Gold brick."

The season is a bit more than two months old. Nick has pitted his flinging wing against the best clubs in the Johnson circuit and, in the majority of cases, has achieved victory. In short, Nick is looked upon right now as the best southpaw in the American League. And the "gold brick" folks are strangely silent.

Chase Again in Hero Role.

Hal Chase undoubtedly is glad that Garry Hermann was a bit hars— and firm—with him when Hal decided he'd much rather play in the Pacific Coast League than with the Redlegs. Of course, no one can play with the Reds and be perfectly happy at the same time, but Hal is much more jocular than he hoped to be.

It was this way:

Harry Sinclair assumed the contract of Chase, and, after considerable dickering, sold the "Peerless First Sacker" to Garry Hermann. When the sad, sad news was carried to Chase, he at once got in touch with Sinclair.

"Please, kind sir, do not add to the sorrows of my life by making me play in Cincinnati," pleaded Hal. "Let me go to the California League. If you do, I will accept a cut of $2,000 per year in my two year iron-clad contract."

"You don't belong to me any longer," answered Sinclair. "Speak to Hermann."

Garry's Ultimatum.

Hal got in touch with Hermann, recited his piece and then listened while Garry said:

"You'll play in Cincinnati or nowhere."

Rather than be forced out of baseball, Chase decided to go to the Reds. His real objection of getting back into the majors was because he feared ridicule if he failed to deliver the goods. During recent years Chase achieved the unenviable honor of being the most panned man in baseball. Chase had stood as much of it as he could. He wanted to go some place like California—where the knockers were fewer.

But, as you know, Chase joined the Reds—and he has become one of the idols of the town. His playing at home and abroad has been spectacular. He has hit them—and with considerable frequency. His fielding, both around first base and in the field has been brilliant.

Hal Chase expected he'd become a "goat" by going back into the majors. Instead, he has become something of a hero again.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

It availed the Yankees naught to tie up the score in the ninth. The Indians came along with the punch in the tenth.

Those one run beatings figured in six of the contests yesterday.

Those pesky Tigers are coming along strong. They are now in third place and in a position to leap into the runner-up position.

The Red Sox had the punch in the ninth. And just when the White Sox had the game clinched.

Washington had to turn some time, but too bad they took a fall at the Browns just when Fielder had his men going good.

The Braves were held in check by the Pirates.

The Phillies and Dodgers refuse to let the other teams pull them down. Both won 2 to 1, the Reds and Cubs being on the short end.

Wuxtry! Wuxtry! The Giants won.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, June 15.—Jerry Simpson of Pataunkunk was in this place recently buying cows.
Harry Coons has sold one of his horses to Joachim Deyo of Pataunkunk.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barringer entertained on Saturday Edbert Lennon and daughter of Malden, Jesse O. Palen and wife, Joseph M. Lennon, wife and children and George E. Lennon of this place.

William Feltman had had the misfortune to cut his finger very badly. John Bell picked a pall of nice strawberries on Monday.

John Feltman was a Kerhonkson caller on Monday.

Frank Decker and daughter of Accord called at Jerry Keator's one day this week.

Dr. Fuller of Kerhonkson was in this place early Wednesday morning.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

This morning the senior's year book, "The Maroon," was placed on sale. The seniors expect that there will be a great demand and to stimulate this demand they have advertised a review of all the school's activities in the past year, and pages devoted to each of the four classes in school.

Prize Stories and Poems.

Following the custom of former years the graduating class have offered several prizes for the best poems and stories submitted by the high school students. A faculty committee were the judges and the winning manuscripts were printed in "The Maroon."

The first prize of two dollars and a half for the best poem was awarded to Helen F. Pennington, '17, and the second prize of one dollar for the second best poem was won by Olga Van Slyke Owens, '18. The titles of these poems were "The Spirit of Poetry" and "The Song of Spring."

The two dollar and a half prize for the best story was awarded to Douglas Brown, '17, whose story was entitled "Queer." Samuel Goldwasser of '16 was given the second prize for his story, "The Yawning of the Sands," and honorable mention was given Alice Scott, '17, whose topic was "Shakespeare and Marlowe."

Helpful Talk on Library Work.

As the best means of answering the numerous questions asked by students in regard to what vocations they should take up when they leave school, Principal Moulton has obtained several people who are specialists in their lines to discuss different lines of work with the pupils.

Yesterday the girls who cared to heard a very helpful and instructive discussion of library work given by Miss Rose. There seems to be a widespread demand for young women in this vocation and New York city especially is offering special inducements that make it possible for students to obtain the necessary preparation at very little expense to themselves.

Senior Minstrels.

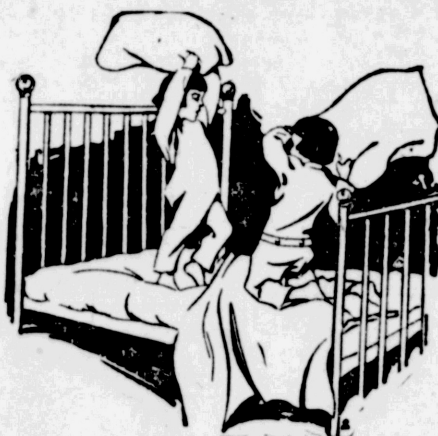

The seniors hope to refill their depleted treasury this evening by giving a minstrel show, and have had little pity on the poor little freshmen who gave their opinions instead of their five cents. The end men have all had go at the game. These black faced stars are Helen Wood, Ruth Humphrey, Ray Terwilliger and John Church. President Hasbrouck will also do his share as interlocutor. It is thought that the novel arrangement of having both boys and girls in the show, together with the inducement of dancing afterwards in the gymnasium will draw a good attendance.

faced a defeat at our hands this year, seems unwilling to try it again. At all events they have cancelled the return game which the local team was to play with Troy at that city this Saturday. This means the maroon and white has another wreath of glory to add to her collection as she has outplayed every team encountered this season in her regular schedule. Strange to say, it was Saugerties and not Albany or Troy or Eastman College that offered the most resistance.

Junior-Senior Tennis.

An unofficial representation of the senior class recently challenged a similar representation of the junior class to a tennis match. After many postponements on account of the weather, the match was at last played on Thursday at the Colonial courts, with the result that there was an overwhelming victory for the junior class. The contest consisted of three sets of doubles, all of which went to the class of '17 by the Affection a Heavenly Gift.

How sacred, how beautiful, is the feeling of affection in pure and guileless bosoms! The proud may sneer at it, the fashionable may call it feeble, the selfish and dissipated may affect to despise it; but the holy passion is surely of heaven, and is made evil by the corruptions of those whom it was sent to bless and preserve.—Mordaunt.

TICKET NAMED AT NIGHT SESSION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Coliseum, St. Louis, June 16.—The Democratic convention marked time and slowly disintegrated today. While the great bulk of the delegates slept late in their hotels, with baggage packed, waiting for the day session forced by the failure of the resolutions committee to agree upon the platform in time to have it presented last night, the thousands of visitors who have packed St. Louis since last Monday were hastening to their homes on every out-bound train.

The Democratic national ticket was completed just before midnight. The renomination of President Woodrow Wilson was accompanied by a demonstration that was kept going for 45 minutes. And only four minutes actual time elapsed between the announcement of that renomination and the declaration by United States Senator Olmstead M. James of Kentucky that Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, likewise had been made the choice of the convention as its candidate for vice-president.

The actual time of the nominations was: President Wilson—Motion to suspend the rules and make his nomination by acclamation, passed by Senator James at 11:52; demand by Robert Emmett Burke of Illinois for Chairman James that Woodrow Wilson had been renominated by the vote of 1,092 to 1, made at 11:54.

Vice-president Thomas R. Marshall—Nominated by Senator John W. Kern in two minute speech commencing at 11:55; motion to suspend rules and make the nomination by acclamation carried without waiting for seconding speeches, and Marshall formally declared the nominee by Chairman James at 11:58. The scenes that preceded the nominations were the wildest that have marked a Democratic national convention in many years. The big hall was jammed to the doors. Within its gates were thousands passed through the police lines by counterfeit badges and bogus credentials issued by local officials. Outside, within ten minutes after the doors were thrown open, were hundreds of properly accredited delegates, officials of the convention and newspaper representatives. Their places had been filled and all appeals to the powers that be for permission to enter were refused. Such distinguished delegates as Charles Francis Murphy of Tammany Hall, and Sheriff "Al" Smith of New York City were among those denied admission. Many disgusted, returned to their hotels and made no effort to be present at the formal ratification of the national ticket. Others determined to get their rights proceeded to the telegraph office near the entrance to the convention hall and telegraphed Chairman James demanding that he get them into their seats.

These telegrams began pouring in on the chairman while William Jennings Bryan, under a suspension of the rules, was declaring for peace and prosperity and a united front against the enemy in an old time speech eloquent with the principles of Democracy. Immediately Senator James despatched officials to bring in all delegates, and for an hour the police vainly tried to get the men into the already overcrowded building who belonged there. Clothing was torn, tempers roused and there was plenty of actual fist encounters.

The Bryan speech and the demonstration in honor of President Wilson were the real features of the prolonged night session in the stifling hall. Invited to address the convention in response to the promise made at the day session by Senator James when the crowd in the galleries had cheered the Nebraskaan, Bryan made it plain that he was enthusiastically for the renomination and the re-election of President Wilson.

"He has broken the power of Wall street," he shouted amidst tumultuous applause. "Our party presents a united front; it carries the banner of peace, progress and prosperity and it demands the right to be continued in power to complete its program for the welfare of the people," was another slogan that carried weight.

All doubt as to where Bryan stands within the party was dispelled by his emphatic declaration of loyalty to the president and his promise to "carry the fight" to the Republican candidates and issues.

Bryan's speech had put the convention in an excellent humor and the managers of the president's campaign took full advantage of it. There was a distinct handicap at the outset, however. Attorney General John Wescott of New Jersey had been chosen to place the name of Mr. Wilson before the convention. Mr. Wescott possesses oratorical gifts of the highest order but his voice is limited in its strength. In consequence only a few persons in the hall were able to hear and understand the well-rounded phrases with which he described his candidate as the "scholar, the statesman, the financier, the emancipator, the pacificator and the moral leader of Democracy."

The inevitable result of the lack of voice of the orator and the great crowd in the hall, uncomfortable, sweltering and trying to hear, was confusion that was distinctly unfortunate. Before Mr. Wescott was more than half through his speech the galleries were demanding that he "name your man" and the confusion was increasing. But Mr. Wescott refused to be hurried and he stuck to the text of his speech until he had completed it.

Realizing the temper of the crowd and also anxious to get the ticket nominated before it should encounter the hoodoo of Friday, Senator James permitted only two seconding speeches, the first by former Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio, and the second by Governor H. C. Stuart of Virginia, the state where the president was born.

Although the delegates themselves were unable to hear the name of their candidate as it left the lips of Mr. Wescott they were not left in any doubt as to what he had said. Senator William Hughes of the president's home state, New Jersey, set off the demonstration by emitting a locomotive yell.

The usual cheering was not as well organized as former conventions have witnessed and the demonstration was spasmodic in character. It was not participated in by the galleries but the delegates themselves made up for this. Led by Senator Hughes, carrying the New Jersey standard, the delegates paraded the hall cheering and chanting. The band in the gallery played popular airs and the floor and galleries joined in.

The most popular song of the night was "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" which was joined in with enthusiasm.

For forty-five minutes the demonstration ran its way. No spectacular devices were resorted to keep it going. There were no hysterical shrieking women in evidence, although the California state standard was carried in the line by the women delegates from that state. When Chairman James rapped for order he had very little trouble in getting the convention under control.

After the two seconding speeches had been completed Senator Hughes was recognized.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," he said "that the rules be suspended and that the renomination of Mr. Wilson be made by acclamation."

"I object! I object!" came a wild shout from the rear of the Illinois section and the burly form of a 200 pound individual clad in heavy black coat, his face bearded with perspiration, elbowed his way through the crowd.

It was Robert Emmet Burke, elected as delegate at large from Illinois, and opposed to the president because he claimed that the administration had favored England in the European war.

"I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman," he shouted, "while Senator James pounded for order as the delegates were all on their feet trying to find out what it was all about."

"State your point of order," shouted Chairman James. "I demand that the roll be called. I want to be recorded this time," yelled Burke.

"All in favor of suspending the rules and declaring the nomination of Woodrow Wilson to be by acclamation will vote aye," shouted James. A mighty chorus of ayes swept delegates and guests alike.

"Opposed no?"

"No," shrieked Burke, amidst a storm of hisses.

"The motion is carried and by a vote of 1,092 to 1, I declare Woodrow Wilson the nominee," ruled James. Burke slipped back to his seat with the satisfaction of having made good his threat that he at least would be found recorded in opposition to the president.

Without delay, Senator James ordered a roll call of the states on the nomination for vice president. Arkansas gave way to Indiana and in a speech two minutes long Senator John W. Kern placed Vice President Marshall's name before the convention. While all opposition to the renomination had been wiped out earlier in the evening, it is doubtful if any of the delegates had desired to name an opposing candidate they would have been given the opportunity.

Chairman James entertained another motion to suspend the rules and without waiting to ask whether there were any additional nominees or any seconding speeches he put the motion and declared the Indiana incumbent the nominee of the convention to succeed himself.

Then came a long wait. The leaders had decided to complete the work of the convention and adjourn sine die, but the resolutions committee was in deadlock. Leading Democrats were called on for speeches and responded but what they said was lost in the confusion of the great crowd shuffling out of the hall.

Finally, seeing that there was no use of holding the delegates together, the leaders permitted adjournment until 11 o'clock today.

Quaint effects are produced by the use of velvet and moire ribbon in various widths. Particularly is this so in the suit illustrated. It is shown in chocolate colored taffeta and is trimmed with brown velvet ribbon, this in a half inch width being stitched in tape effect on the sleeves, body and belt of the coat, also on the hem of the skirt. The bouffant hip drapery and the huge balloon sleeves are picturesque. The tall hat and high button boots are finishing details.

Mankind's Three Lives.
"A man lives three lives—youth, manhood and age," philosophically stated Professor Pate. "Youth is the rising sun of life, when he thinks of what a heck of a feller he is going to be; manhood is the sun at full meridian, when he is satisfied that he is indeed a heck of a feller; age is the setting sun, when he sags around and brags about what a heck of a feller he used to be."—Judge.

Expanding Feet.
Several negro waiters were standing at a railroad station in a southern town discussing the merits of one of their fellow craftsmen. "Dat nigger Henry sure am a hustler, but w'en he moves his feet dey look laik pancakes," said one. "Pancakes?" shout-d another. "W'y man, w'en dat nigger gets good an' koin' dem feet o' his'n dey resemble no pancakes—dey's jes laik a embrailer, all spread out."

In Nebraska in Early Days.
True cats, larger than the modern tiger, short-legged rhinoceroses, mastodons with tusks in both the upper and lower jaw and a great variety of wolf-like carnivora made their home in Nebraska some years ago, or, to be exact, in the tertiary period when that state was an expanse of swampy lowland, covered with vegetation not unlike that of the Amazon wildernesses of the present day.

AMSTERDAM PLAYS HERE ON SUNDAY

Will Clash With Fast Kingston Team on McVey's Field on Delaware Avenue That Afternoon—Good Game Expected.

Kingston will play the fast Hurricanas of Amsterdam, N. Y., at McVey's Field on Sunday afternoon. The Hurricanas were last season known as the Empires, a club that defeated some of the fastest teams in central New York, with such teams as Ronin's All Stars, General Electric, Danforth's club, and Saratoga, went down to defeat before them. This year they have added additional strength and have gathered together some of the fastest players and have one of the best teams that has represented Amsterdam in many years, and are out with a sweeping challenge to all semi-professional clubs. The Hurricanas take their name from the large racing farm of the Hon. John Sanford of Amsterdam, and represent the huge carpet mills of which Mr. Sanford is the president. The game Sunday will be called at 3 o'clock. The battery for Kingston will be Kissam and Schirck. Matty Bence, the popular basketball referee will handle the indicator.

She was Arrested, Charged with Keeping Her Children and Her House on Spruce Street in Filthy Condition—Complaint Withdrawn When She Left Town.

Mrs. Jane Nelson of Spruce street, was arrested a few days ago on the complaint of Miss Bruyn, the county agent, who charged Mrs. Nelson with maintaining both her children and her house in a filthy condition. The case was adjourned at the request of the county agent until Thursday afternoon. When the case was called for trial before Recorder Lang at that time it was announced that Mrs. Nelson had removed from town and had gone to Garrison, N. Y., to live and had taken her four children with her. It was stated that she had left Thursday morning with her children. That being so, Miss Bruyn asked that the complaint be withdrawn and the court granted the request.

Was Elting Cruel to Horse?

Charles R. Elting of No. 75 Henry street was arrested on Thursday afternoon by Policeman Daun on the complaint of Peter Bonesteel, who charged Mr. Elting with driving a horse unfit for use. This morning Mr. Elting was arraigned before Recorder Lang and the case was adjourned until Saturday morning.

Mr. Elting said he was not guilty. Amos Van Ertan was present in court in the interest of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Struck Not to Strike.

Evidently the clock in the steeple of the First Dutch Church has gone on a strike not to strike, for it is many and many a day since the up-town people have been cheered or hurried or dragged through the day or night, as the case might be, by the ringing of the hours by the church bell. Can't somebody "arbitrate" in the matter?

Stock Up the Larder at Shader's Saturday Sale!

The meat barons and in fact all kinds of food producers have gone the limit in price-raising, and there's no relief in sight. We realize that it is difficult for the man earning moderate wages to live as he did even before the outbreak of the European war, but we are unable to better his condition to any great extent. For Saturday's sale we have cut prices as deeply as business safety will permit, and we would advise the purchasing of as many provisions as possible to last well into next week wherever possible.

Enough Said.
A railroad lawyer who has had much to do with human nature says, "Never cross question an Irishman from the old side." And he gave an illustration from his own experience:
A section hand had been killed by an express train, and his widow was suing for damages. The main witness swore positively that the locomotive whistle had not sounded until after the whole train had passed over his departed friend.
"See here, McGinnis," said I. "You admit that the whistle blew?"
"Yes, sir, it blew, sir."
"Now if that whistle sounded in time to give Michael warning the fact would be in favor of the company, wouldn't it?"
"Yes, sir, and Mike would be resting here this day."

The Thing to Do.
The gentleman had just been told the story of Daniel in the lions' den, and the question had been put to him:
"What do you think Daniel did the very first thing when he found he was saved from the lions?"
The child reflected a moment and then replied, "I suppose he telephoned home to his wife to tell her he was all right."—New York Times.

The Ideal "Cottage for Two."
The proverbial "cottage built for two" is a place of much economy of space and much expense of temper, time and toll. The architect whose bed lies among country mansions laughs at the "cottage" idea, and the snugly satisfied city dweller, from his ill lighted and excessively cramped apartment, finds a theme for many jokes in "the cottage built for two." But every day in every little hamlet and big town some young people are demonstrating the truth that the little house well planned, with abundance of sunlight and fresh air and with absolutely practical arrangement of rooms and full equipment of modern conveniences, is not only a possibility but also a most satisfactorily proved fact.—Raymond Comstock in Country Life Magazine.

Forgot His Politeness.
De Witt, a little chap, borrows Reverend Smith's kitten to play with. The other day he returned the kitten and said: "Mr. Smith, here is your kitten I brought home." The old gentleman who enjoys hearing De Witt talk, said: "What's that, De Witt?" "Why, I brought your kitten home." The pastor shook his head, and looked puzzled. "Oh," exclaimed the disgusted boy, dropping the kitten and turning his back on the minister. "It's your 4—tiny cat!"—Cleveland Leader.

NEW BUILDING ON BIJOU SITE

Plans are being prepared by Architect Betz, assisted by Kenyon Drake, for the erection of a three-story building on the site of the building occupied by the Bijou Theatre, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago. Work has been begun on removing the wreckage from the site and work will shortly be started upon the erection of the new building, by Samuel Drake, the owner of the property. What business will be located in the new building is not known, as Mr. Drake has not, as yet, leased or rented to any firm.

Because of the Poughkeepsie boat races Saturday afternoon there will be no hostesses at the Twallskill Club.

A surprise linen shower was tendered Miss Gussie Millens at her home on Meadow street by twenty-five of her friends, she being the recipient of many beautiful linens. A buffet luncheon was served at a late hour, which was followed by dancing and musical selections. Miss Millens, whose engagement to Harry B. Moss of New York city was formally announced, was given the well wishes of all her friends for future happiness.

To say that Mrs. C. L. Schleede was given a surprise at her home on Linden street on Wednesday evening, June 14, is putting it rather mildly. For Mrs. Schleede on hearing an unusual amount of tooting of automobile horns was amazed on going to the door to see touring cars coming up the driveway to her home, containing about 20 of her most intimate friends, all sending up cheer after cheer and wishing Mrs. Schleede many happy returns of the day, the occasion being her birthday. After the hostess had somewhat recovered from her surprise, a truck put in appearance which was loaded with all kinds of good things which kept Mrs. Schleede busy for an hour untiring packages amid peals of laughter from her guests, who enjoyed her astonishment as present after present was unwrapped. Among the many useful and pretty things received were several amounts of money, a gold embossed set of china dishes, cut glass, lace, linen, cut flowers, potted plants and a huge birthday cake prettily decorated and ornamented with candles. At 12 p. m. a bountiful supper was partaken of in the dining room, the decorations being red and white, the huge birthday cake being placed in the center of the table while on both ends were large vases filled with red and white carnations. At the side of each plate was a tiny red and white basket with a rosebud filled with chocolate nut creams. The guests departed for their homes in the wee hours in the morning in their cars, wishing Mrs. Schleede many more happy birthdays and vowing their host and hostess royal entertainers.

More than 200 persons attended the wedding of Miss Nola H. Guthrie, formerly of this city, and Lieutenant Maurice L. Miller of Duluth, Minn., which was solemnized at high noon Thursday in the Methodist Church in Monroe by the Rev. O. P. Hoyt. Miss Guthrie is a graduate of the Kingston high school and for some time taught school in Milton. She is a daughter of Mrs. Jennie Fredenburgh, who is now residing in Syracuse.

Lieutenant Miller, who is a son of Congressman Clarence Miller of Washington, was one of the members of this year's graduating class of West Point. He will receive his appointment in July.

The wedding was a military one. The bride was given away by her uncle, C. A. Morehouse, who was married four weeks ago. She was gowned in white tulle with silver soutache braid and lace trimmings, and wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. W. H. Stockbridge of this city was the matron of honor and was attired in white tulle trimmed with silver lace and bands of blue satin. Mrs. Stockbridge also wore a large picture hat trimmed with blue velvet and pink roses and carried a bouquet of pink roses tied with an immense bow of blue mulline.

The four bridesmaids were gowned in dainty summer dresses of white net and voile with large white hats trimmed with blue mulline. They carried shower bouquets of pink roses. The bridesmaids were the Miss Eleanor Titus of Huntington, L. I., Miss Florence Morehouse, a cousin of Brooklyn, and the Misses Lena Dick and Bessie Wesley of Kingston, school chums of the bride. Lieutenant William Cochran of West Point was the best man. The following classmates of the groom acted as ushers: Lieuts. John Frazer, Ferdinand Gallagher, William Wilson and Weir Raiche. They all wore white dress uniforms and sabers.

Elizabeth Hull and Florence Mitten, both of Monroe, acted as flower girls and were crowned in white and carried baskets of pink roses. Harold Fredenburgh, half brother of the bride, was the page.
A reception was held in the home of Mr. Morehouse following the ceremony. Laurel and sweet peas were used to decorate the home and the infant colors of blue and pink prevailed. The bride cake was cut by the bride with the groom's sabre, and military customs were observed throughout. Robert M. Walters of Cold Spring had charge of the decorations, and Miss Morgan of Monroe of the luncheon served after the ceremony.

At 4 o'clock, Miss Nola H. Guthrie and her bridesmaids will spend some time in Washington. They will visit the groom's parents in Duluth, Minn.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Sleepy Time Story About an Interesting Little Animal.

GAY FELLOW OF THE WOODS.

Amusing Ways of the Raccoon—Very Dainty in His Feeding—Catches Fish Like His Big Brother, the Bear. Things For Young Folks to Know—A Prize Baby.

This evening, said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and Little Ned, I am going to tell you about

MOOWEESUK, THE COON.

Mooweesuk, the little coon, builds his house in the very quietest spot in the wood, far from inquisitive neighbors. When twilight shadows gather and the big, round, yellow moon creeps over the mountain little Mooweesuk comes out of his house to look about and feed on frogs and fishes.

The coon is a joyous little animal and is very particular to wash, when possible, all food before eating it. Coons are fond of many things, roots, clams, fish, the eggs of birds and sweet corn being much appreciated by these little wood folk.

When they go out for a walk the mother always leads the way, and the children follow, bear fashion, in single file behind her.

The coon can also walk on its hind feet, sitting up like brute. Mooweesuk relishes most things found in the woods and when hungry will eat ants, worms and beetles, found by grubbing in hollow logs. Coons are very fond of sweet sap, turtles and waterfowl and wintergreen berries. In order to get the turtle meat they drop a stone upon its shell and crack it. The little chaps also relish chicken and pumpkin seeds.

The coon has a very clever way of catching his fish. Like the bear, he knows how to flip it out of the water with his paw. But in addition to this he has learned how to attract the fish to the surface by dipping his whiskers into the water and moving them slightly. Mr. Finny is a bit curious, comes too close to the surface and is flipped out of the water by Mooweesuk's paw.

The coon makes a most entertaining pet, as he is full of mischief and a droll little creature and has a childish pleasure in new pranks.

Presence of Mind.
A boy in northern Alabama recently, while coming from the postoffice along a country road, saw on the other side of a narrow valley and a large stream over which there was no bridge the cabin of a neighbor beginning to catch fire at one end. The lad yelled an alarm, but the inmates, who he rightly believed were at supper and whom he could glimpse through an open door, failed to heed him. He was carrying some rolled papers that had come in the mail. Having seen or heard of a megaphone he quickly tore off wrappers, rolled the broad sheets into a cone and began to roar through the little end: "Marnard, Marnard! Fire! Fire! Fire!" This the people heard, or enough of the strange noise to excite their curiosity, and they came out to discover the flames and quickly put them out. The boy may have been given credit for quick thinking; he certainly deserved it.

A Pretty Baby Boy.

Recently there was held in New York city a "baby week," which ended in a parade, in which several hundred little people took part. John Ryan, eight months old, who was adjudged the most perfect baby, won the first prize, a gold cup. The lady who is holding John in her arms is Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, who gave the cup to John. Ten other babies received gold medals. The first thing Baby John did when Mrs. Hearst gave him the cup was to try to put it in his mouth. He failed because his mouth was too small. The hundreds of other babies present looked on, but without the slightest evidence of envy.

Hotel Insurance Against Robbery.
At a well known hotel in Venice it is the practice to charge guests 25 centimes per diem for insurance against fire and robbery, the amount covered for this premium being 1,500 francs. This is a very convenient arrangement, as robbery is far from uncommon in Italy.—London Truth.

STUDY THE PRESENT.

Why not study the present? If a man examines his thoughts he will find them all occupied with the past and the future. We hardly ever think about the present. * * * Thus always laying ourselves out to be happy (in the future) it is inevitable that man cannot be so actual.—Pascal.

OUR WANTS.
Wanting nothing, you would lead an aimless life. You will get accustomed to living your life right through with a want in it. We all have to do that. You will get accustomed to wanting, and this habit will come to be a part of your life. You will be all the better for it.

Fleeing From War

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

When the pan-European war broke out I was in Berlin. I wished to reach London, where I could get a steamer for America as soon as possible, for I feared an interruption of travel. But there was such a crowd of fugitives, besides the troops, being moved westward, that I concluded to wait till the trains were less crowded, so I remained where I was, and finally there came a time when I felt that I could go through comfortably.

I chose a way train, because the main exodus was on the express trains. The former are composed of compartments holding eight persons, between which there is no connection. The latter are also compartments, but there is a passageway so that one can walk through the train, as in America. The compartment in which I started was full, but travelers kept getting out at the stations until there was but one person left, a woman who wore a veil thick enough to conceal her features.

As soon as she and I were alone she began to show signs of illness. I asked her if I could do anything for her, and she replied—in a coarse voice for a woman, I thought—asking me if I had any liquor. I told her I had not, whereupon she said that she had some very fine brandy which she had intended to make a present to her mother, but she must use it. Taking it from a handbag, she poured a little of it into a glass she produced and drank it off. Then, suddenly remembering me, she poured the rest of the liquor into the glass and handed it to me.

"Drink it," she said. "My gift is spoiled."

"It is more than I care for," I protested.

"Drink what you like and throw the rest out of the window."

I did not propose to throw away such good liquor and drank it all. A few minutes after I had done so I began to feel dizzy and the power to move or speak leaving me. The woman at once discarded all appearance of illness and asked me how I liked her liquor. I could not reply, and when she was satisfied that I could not she threw off her feminine attire and appeared as a man. Then he took my traveling cap off my head and put it on his own. His next act was to go through my pockets till he found my passport, which he appropriated.

His German speech had been with a foreign accent, and now that he had taken my passport I suspected that he was a foreigner to the country trying to get out of it. I was completely helpless from the effects of the liquor, which I had been undoubtedly drugged. Nevertheless, I was perfectly conscious of all that was taking place. The man put his woman's apparel under the cushion of the seat, and when the train stopped at the next station and the guard unlocked the door of the compartment he got out and hurried away. I endeavored to tell the guard to stop him, but I was powerless even to point him. The door was again locked, and the train moved on.

The effect of the drug did not last long, and when I roused myself and on a train leaving Germany and required to show a passport that I did not have. I was not permitted to remain undisturbed, for later on in the day, when the train stopped, a couple of German officials appeared at the door of my compartment, evidently looking for some one. They pounced upon me and demanded my passport. I told them how I had been robbed of it, and I had half finished my story when one of them exclaimed, "He is our man!" Then they ordered me to produce any secret papers I had about me. I protested, and they searched me.

It was evident that they were after a spy, and I believed that he was the man who had drugged me and taken my passport. They took me out of the train, and we boarded one going to Berlin. When we reached the capital I was taken before an officer and questioned. I did not correspond with the description he had of the spy, and I heard him tell my captors that they had made a mistake. I was able to produce letters received from America and told him that if he would permit me to communicate with the American embassy, where my passport had been seized, I could further substantiate my identity.

They were about to call a messenger for this purpose when a telegram was received stating that a man had been arrested with military information on his person and bearing the passport of an American, the name being the one I had given. This proved my case, but I was held till the spy was brought to Berlin and to the office where I was detained. As soon as I saw him I recognized him for the man who had drugged me. He was a Frenchman and had gathered a lot of military information.

There was not much formality about such matters, and instead of trying the spy the officer who examined him told his captors to take him away. I fancied that this was an order to shoot him.

Having recovered my passport, I made another attempt to leave the country. This time I accepted no transportation either to drink or to smoke, but pursued my way without a word to or from any one except officials. I worked my way through Belgium to France, crossed the channel and after much delay in London found passage for New York.

PLATFORM REPORTED TO CONVENTION

National platform of the Democratic party as reported to the convention at St. Louis:

The Democratic party, in national convention assembled, adopts the following declaration to the effect that the people of the United States may both realize the achievements wrought by four years of Democratic administration and be apprised of the policies to which the party is committed for the further conduct of national affairs.

Record of Achievements.

We endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson. It speaks for itself. It is the best exposition of sound Democratic policy at home and abroad.

We challenge comparison of our record, our progress and our reconstructive legislation with those of any party of any time.

We found our country hampered by special privilege, a vicious tariff, obsolete banking laws and an inflexible currency. Our foreign affairs were dominated by commercial interests for their selfish ends. The Republican party, despite repeated pledges, was impotent to correct abuses which it had fostered. Under our administration, under a leadership which has never faltered, these abuses have been corrected and our people have been freed therefrom.

Our archaic banking and currency system, a profile of paucity and disaster—long the refuge of the money trust—has been supplanted by the Federal Reserve Act, a true Democracy of credit under government control, already proved a financial bulwark in a world crisis, mobilizing our resources, placing abundant credit at the disposal of legitimate industry, and making a currency panic impossible.

We have created a Federal Trade Commission to accommodate the perplexing questions arising under the anti-trust laws so that monopoly may be strangled at its birth and legitimate industry encouraged. Fair competition in business is now assured.

We have effected an adjustment of the tariff, adequate for revenue under peace conditions, amenable to the consumer and to the producer. We have adjusted the burdens of taxation so that swollen incomes bear their equitable share. Our revenues have been sufficient in times of world stress and will largely exceed the expenditures of the current fiscal year.

We have lifted human labor from the category of commodities and have secured to the workman the right of voluntary association for his protection and welfare. We have protected the rights of the laborer against the unwarranted issuance of writs of injunction, and have guaranteed to him the right of trial by jury in cases of alleged contempt committed outside of the presence of the court. We have advanced the postal service to genuine efficiency, enlarged the postal savings system, and increased the postal service and extensions, thus reaching two and one-half millions additional people, improved the postal service in every branch, and for the first time in our history, placed the post office system on a self-supporting basis with actual surplus in 1913, 1914 and 1915.

Economic Freedom.

The reforms which were most obviously needed to clear away special privilege, prevent unfair discrimination and release the energies of all men of all ranks and advantages, have been effected by recent legislation. We must now remove, so far as possible, every remaining element of unrest and uncertainty from the path of the business men of America and secure for them a continued period of quiet, assured and confident prosperity.

Tariff.

We reaffirm our belief in the doctrine of a tariff for the purpose of providing sufficient revenue for the operation of the government economy administered and unobscuredly endorsed by the tariff law as truly exemplifying that doctrine. We recognize that tariff rates are necessarily subject to change to meet changing conditions in the world's production and trade. The events of the last two years have brought about many momentous changes. In some respects their effects are yet conjectural and wait to be disclosed, particularly in regard to our foreign trade. Two years of war which has directly involved most of the chief industrial nations of the world, and which has directly affected the life and duty of all nations, are bringing about economic changes more varied and far-reaching than those ever before experienced. In order to ascertain just what these changes may be the Democratic congress is providing for a non-partisan tariff commission to make impartial and thorough study of every economic fact that may throw light either upon our past or upon our future fiscal policy with regard to the imposition of taxes on imports or with regard to the changed and changing conditions under which our trade is carried on. We cordially endorse this timely proposal, and declare ourselves in sympathy with the principle and purpose of shaping legislation within that field in accordance with established facts rather than in accordance with the demands of selfish interests or upon information provided largely, if not exclusively by them.

Americanism.

The part that the United States will play in the new day of international relationship which is now upon us will depend upon our preparation and our character. The Democratic party therefore recognizes the assertion and triumphant demonstration of the indivisible and coherent strength of the nation as the supreme issue of this day in which the whole world faces the crisis of manifold change. It summons all men, of whatever origin or creed, who would reap themselves Americans, to join in making clear to all the world the unity and consequent power of America. This is an issue of patriotism. To taint it with partisanship would be to defile it. In this day of test, America must show itself, not a nation of partisans, but a nation of patriots. There is gathered here in America the best of the blood, the industry and the genius of the whole world, the elements of a great race, and a magnificent society to be melted into a mighty and splendid nation. Whoever, actuated by the purpose to promote the interest of a foreign power in disregard of our own country's welfare or to injure this government in its foreign relations or to cripple or destroy its industries at home, and whoever, arousing prejudices of a racial, religious or other nature creates discord and strife among our people so as to obstruct the whole process of unification, is faithless to the trust which the privileges of our citizenship repose in him, and is disloyal to his country. We therefore condemn as subversive of this nation's unity and integrity, and as destructive of its welfare, the activities and designs of every group of organization, political or otherwise, that has for its object the advancement of the interest of a foreign power, whether such object is promoted by intimidating the government, a political party, or representatives of the people or which is calculated and tends to divide our people into antagonistic groups and thus to destroy that complete agreement and solidarity of the people, and that unity of sentiment and national purpose so essential to the perpetuity of the nation and its free institutions. We condemn all alliances and combinations of whatever nationality or descent who agree and conspire together for the purpose of embarrassing or weakening our government or of improperly influencing or coercing our public representatives in dealing or negotiating with any foreign power. We charge that such conspiracies among a limited number exist and have been instigated for the purpose of advancing the interests of foreign countries to the prejudice and detriment of our country. We condemn any political party which, in view of the activity of such conspirators, surrenders its integrity or modifies its policy.

Preparedness.

Along with the proof of our character as a nation must go the proof of our power to play the part that legitimately belongs to us. The people of the United States love peace. They respect the rights and covet the friendship of all other nations. They desire neither any additional territory nor any advantage which cannot be peacefully gained by their skill, their industry or their enterprise, but they insist upon having absolute freedom of national life and policy, and feel that they owe it to themselves and to the role of spirited independence which it is their solemn ambition to play, that they should render themselves secure against the hazard of interference from any quarter and should be able to protect their rights upon the seas or in the air.

Therefore, favor the maintenance of an army fully adequate to the requirements of order, of safety, and of the protection of the nation's rights, the fullest development of modern methods of sea coast defense, and the maintenance of an adequate reserve of citizens trained to arms and prepared to safeguard the people and territory of the United States against any danger of hostile action which may unexpectedly arise; and a fixed policy for the continuous development of a navy worthy to support the great naval traditions of this nation and fully equal to the international tasks which the United States hopes and expects to take a part in performing. The plans and enactments of the present congress afford substantial proof of our purpose in this exigent matter.

International Relations.

The Democratic administration has throughout the present war scrupulously and successfully held to the old path of neutrality and to the peaceful pursuit of the legitimate objects of our national life, which statesmen of all parties and creeds have perscribed for themselves in America since the beginning of our history. But the circumstances of the last two years have revealed necessities of international action which no former generation can have foreseen. We hold that it is the duty of the United States to use its power not only to make itself secure at home, but also to make secure its just interests throughout the world and both for this end and the interest of humanity, to assist the world in securing settled peace and justice.

We believe that every people has the right to choose the sovereignty under which it shall live; that the small states of the world have a right to enjoy from other nations the same respect for their sovereignty and for their territorial integrity that great and powerful nations expect and insist upon; and that the world has a right to be free from every disturbance of its peace and that has its origin in aggression or disregard of the rights of peoples and nations; and we believe that the time has come when it is the duty of the United States to join with the other nations of the world in any feasible association that will effectively serve those principles to maintain inviolate the complete security of the highway of the seas for the common and unhindered use of all nations.

The present administration has consistently sought to act upon and realize in its conduct of the foreign affairs of the nation the principle that should be the object of any association of the nations formed to secure the peace of the world and maintenance of national and individual rights. It has followed the highest American traditions. It has preferred respect for the fundamental rights of smaller states even to property interests, and has secured the friendship of the people of these states for the United States by refusing to make a mere material interest an excuse for the assertion of our superior power against the dignity of their sovereign independence. It has regarded the lives of its citizens and the claims of humanity as of greater moment than material rights and peace as the best basis for the just settlement of commercial claims. It has made the honor and ideals of the United States its standard alike in negotiation and action.

Pan-American Concord.

We recognize now as we have already recognized, a definite and common interest between the United States and the other peoples and republics of the Western Hemisphere in all matters of national independence and free political development. We favor the establishment and maintenance of the closest relations of amity and mutual helpfulness between the United States and the other republics of the American continents for the support of peace and the promotion of a common prosperity. To that end we favor all measures which may be necessary to facilitate intimate intercourse and promote commerce between the United States and her neighbors to the south of us, and such international understandings as may be practicable and suitable to accomplish these ends. We commend the action of the Democratic administration in holding the Pan-American financial conference at Washington in May, 1915, and organizing the International High Commission which represented the recent meeting of representatives of the Latin American republics at Buenos Ayres, April, 1916, which have so greatly promoted the friendly relations between the people of the Western Hemisphere.

Mexico.

The Monroe Doctrine is reasserted as a principle of Democratic faith. That doctrine guarantees the independent republics of the two Americas against aggression from another continent. It implies as well, the more scrupulous regard upon our part of the sovereignty of each of them. We court their good will.

We seek not to despoil them. The want of a stable, responsible government in Mexico, capable of repressing and punishing marauders and bandits, who have not only taken their lives and seized and destroyed the property of American citizens in that country, but have insolently invaded our soil, made war upon and murdered our people thereon, has rendered it necessary temporarily to occupy, by our armed forces, a portion of the territory of that friendly state. Until, by the restoration of law and order therein a repetition of such incursions is improbable, the necessity for their remaining will continue, they must remain. Intervention, implying as it does, military subjugation, is revolting to the people of the United States, notwithstanding the provocation to that course has been great and should be resorted to, if at all, only as a last resort. The stubborn resistance of the president and his advisors to every demand and suggestion to enter upon it, is creditable alike to them and to the people in whose name he speaks.

IX. Merchant Marine.

Immediate attention has been made for the development of the carrying trade of the United States. Our foreign commerce has in the past been subject to many unnecessary and vexatious obstacles in the way of legislation of Republican congresses. Until the recent Democratic tariff legislation, it was hampered by unreasonable burdens of taxation. Until the recent banking legislation, it had at its disposal few of the necessary instruments of international credit and exchange. Until the formation of the pending act to promote the construction of a merchant marine, it lacked even the prospect of adequate carriage by sea. We heartily endorse the purposes and policies of the pending Shipping Bill and favor all such additional measures of constructive or remedial legislation as may be necessary to restore our flag to the seas and to provide further facilities for our foreign commerce, particularly such laws as may be made to remove unfair conditions of competition in the dealings of American merchants and producers with competitors in foreign markets.

X. Conservation.

For the safe-guarding and quickening of the life of our people, we favor the conservation and development of the natural resources of the country by means of a policy which shall be positive rather than negative, a policy which shall not withhold such resources from development but which, while permitting and encouraging their use, shall prevent both waste and monopoly of their exploitation, and we earnestly favor the passage of acts which will accomplish these objects, and we reaffirm the declaration of the platform of 1912 on this subject. The policy of reclaiming our arid lands should be steadily adhered to.

XI. The Administration and the Farmer.

We favor the vigorous prosecution of investigations and plans to render farming more profitable and country life more healthful, comfortable and attractive, and we believe that this should be a dominant aim of the nation as well as of the states. With all its recent improvement, farming still lags behind other occupations in development as a business, and the advantages of an advancing civilization have not accrued to rural communities in a fair proportion. Much has been accomplished in this field under the present administration—far more than under any previous administration. In the federal reserve act of the last congress, and the rural credits act of the present congress, the machinery has been created which will make credit available to the farmer constantly and readily, and he has at last been put upon a footing of equality with the merchant and the manufacturer in securing the capital necessary to carry on his enterprises. Grades and standards necessary to the intelligent and successful conduct of the business of agriculture have also been established, or in the course of being established by law. The long-needed cotton futures act, passed by the sixty-third congress, has now been a successful operation for nearly two years. A grain grades bill, long needed, and a permissible warehouse bill, intended to provide better storage facilities and to enable the farmer to obtain certificates upon which he may secure advances of money, have been passed by the house of representatives, have been favorably reported to the senate, and will probably become law during the present session of congress. Both houses have passed a good roads measure which will be of far-reaching benefit to all agricultural communities. Above all, the most extraordinary and significant progress has been made under the direction of the department of agriculture in extending and perfecting practical farm demonstration work which is so rapidly substituting scientific for empirical farming. But it is also necessary that rural activities should be better directed through co-operation and organization, that unfair methods of competition should be eliminated and the conditions requisite for the just, orderly and economical marketing of farm products created. We approve the Democratic administration for having emphatically directed attention for the first time to the essential interests of agriculture involved in farm-making and finance, for creating the office of markets and rural organization in connection with the department of agriculture, and for extending the co-operative machinery necessary for conveying information to farmers by means of demonstrations. We favor continued liberal provision, not only for the benefit of production, but also for the study and solution of problems for farm marketing and finance and for the extension of existing agencies for improving country life.

XII. Good Roads.

The happiness, comfort and prosperity of rural life and the development of the city are alike conserved by the construction of public highways. We therefore favor national aid in the construction of post roads and roads for military purposes.

XIII. Government Employment.

We hold that the health, life and strength of the women, men and children of the nation are its greatest asset, and that in conservation of these the federal government wherever it acts as the employer of labor, should both on its own account and as an example, put into effect the following principles of just employment:

- 1.—A living wage for all employees.
- 2.—A working day not to exceed eight hours, with one day of rest in seven.
- 3.—The adoption of safety appliances and the establishment of thoroughly sanitary conditions of labor.
- 4.—Adequate compensation for industrial accidents.
- 5.—The standards of the "uniform child labor law" wherever minors are employed.
- 6.—Such provisions for decency, comfort and health in the employment of women as should be accorded the mothers of the race.
- 7.—An equitable retirement law providing for the retirement of superannuated and disabled employees of the civil service, to the end that a higher standard of efficiency may be maintained.

We believe also that the adoption of similar principles should be urged and applied in the legislation of the states with regard to labor within their borders; that through every possible agency the life and health of the people of the nation should be conserved; that the federal government should develop upon a systematic scale the means already begun under the present administration to assist laborers throughout the union to seek and obtain employment; and that the same assistance and encouragement should be extended by the federal government to systematic vocational training.

We favor a thorough reconsideration of the means and methods by which the federal government handles questions of public health.

XIV. Labor.

We declare our faith in the seaman's act passed by the Democratic congress and we promise our earnest continuance of its enforcement. We favor the speedy enactment of an effective federal child labor law, and the regulation of the shipment of prison-made goods in interstate commerce.

We favor the creation of a federal bureau of safety in the department of labor to gather facts concerning industrial hazards, and to recommend legislation to prevent the maiming and killing of human beings.

We favor the extension of the powers and functions of the federal bureau of mines.

We favor the development upon a systematic scale of the means, already begun under the present administration, to assist laborers throughout the nation to seek and obtain employment and the extension by the federal government of the same assistance and encouragement as now given to agricultural training.

XV. Public Health.

We favor a thorough reconsideration of the means and methods by which the federal government handles questions of public health to the end that human life may be conserved by the elimination of loathsome diseases, the improvement of sanitation and the diffusion of knowledge of disease prevention.

We favor the establishment by the federal government of tuberculosis sanitariums for needy tuberculous patients.

XVI. Senate Rules.

We favor such an alteration of the rules of procedure of the senate of the United States as will permit the transaction of the nation's legislative business.

XVII. Economy and the Budget.

We demand careful economy in all expenditures for the support of the government and to that end favor a return by the house of representatives to its former practice of initiating and preparing all appropriation bills through a single committee chosen from its membership in order that responsibility may be centered, expenditures standardized and made uniform, and waste and duplication in the public service as much as possible avoided. We favor this as a practicable first step towards a budget system.

XVIII. Civil Service.

We reaffirm our declarations for the rigid enforcement of the civil service laws.

XIX. Philippine Islands.

We heartily endorse the provisions of the bill recently passed by the house of representatives further promoting self-government in the Philippine Islands as being in fulfillment of the policy declared by the Democratic party in its last national platform, and we reiterate our endorsement of the purpose of ultimate independence for the Philippine Islands, expressed in the preamble of that measure.

XX. Woman Suffrage.

We recommend the extension of the franchise to the women of the country by the states upon the same terms as to men.

XXI. Protection of Citizens.

We again declare that the sacred rights of American citizenship must be preserved at home and abroad and that no treaty with any other government shall receive the sanction of our government which does not expressly recognize the absolute equality of all our citizens, irrespective of race, creed or previous nationality, and which does not recognize the right of expatriation. The American government should protect American citizens in their rights not only at home, but abroad, and any country having a government should be held to strict accountability for any wrong done them, either to person or property. At the earliest practical opportunity our country should strive earnestly for peace among the warring nations of Europe and seek to bring about the adoption of the fundamental principle of justice and humanity that all men shall enjoy equality of rights and freedom from discrimination in the lands wherein they dwell.

XXII. Prison Reform.

We demand that the modern principles of prison reform be applied in our federal penal system. We favor such work for prisoners as shall give them training in remunerative occupations so that they may make an honest living when released from prison; the setting apart of the net wages of the prisoner to be paid to his dependent family or to be reserved for his own use upon his release; the liberal extension of the principles for the federal parole law, with due regard both to the welfare of the prisoner and the interests of society; the adoption of the probation system, especially in the case of first offenders not convicted of serious crimes.

XXIII. Penitentiaries.

We renew the declarations of recent Democratic platforms relating to generous pensions for soldiers and their widows, and call attention to our record of performance in this particular.

XXIV. Waterways and Flood Control.

We renew the declaration in our Baltimore platform relating to the development of our waterways. The recent devastation of the lower Mississippi valley and several other sections by floods accentuates the movement for the regulation of river flow by additional bank and levee protection below, and diversion, storage and control of the flood-waters above, and their utilization for beneficial purposes in the reclamation of arid and swamp lands and development of water power, instead of permitting the floods to continue as heretofore agents of destruction. We hold that the control of the Mississippi river is a national problem. The preservation of the depth of its waters for purposes of navigation, the building of levees and works of bank protection to maintain the integrity of its channel and prevent the overflow of its valley resulting in the interruption of interstate commerce, the reorganization of the mail service and the enormous loss of life and property, impose an obligation which alone can be discharged by the national government.

We favor the adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for the development and improvement of our harbors and inland waterways with economy and efficiency so as to permit their navigation by vessels of standard draft.

XXV. Alaska.

It has been and will be the policy of the Democratic party to enact laws necessary for the speedy development of Alaska and its great natural resources.

XXVI. Territories.

We favor granting to the people of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico the traditional territorial government accorded to all territories of the United States since the beginning of our government, and we believe the officials appointed to administer the government of those several territories should be qualified by previous bona fide residence.

XXVII. Candidates.

We unreservedly endorse our president and vice-president, Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, and Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana, who have performed the functions of their great offices faithfully and impartially and with distinguished ability.

In particular we commend to the American people the splendid diplomatic victories of our great president, who has preserved the vital interests of our government and its citizens and kept us out of war.

Woodrow Wilson stands today the greatest American of his generation.

XXVIII. Conclusion.

This is a critical hour in the history of America, a critical hour in the history of the world. Upon the record above set forth, which shows great constructive achievement in following out a consistent policy for our domestic and internal development; upon the record of the Democratic administration, which has maintained the honor, the dignity and the interests of the United States, and at the same time retained the respect and friendship of all the nations of the world; and upon the great policies for the future, strengthening of the life of our country, the enlargement of our national vision, and the ennobling of our international relations as set forth above, we appeal with confidence to the voters of the country.

MORPHY, THE CHESS WIZARD

Marvelous Skill of the Greatest Master of Modern Times.

Paul Charles Morphy, the famous American chess player, is classed as "perhaps the most remarkable chess player of modern times." He was born in New Orleans in 1837 and was notably precocious as a child. He showed this precocity particularly in games of chess, and before he was thirteen had defeated many well known amateurs. For several years he studied law at the College of South Carolina and played chess only occasionally. But in 1857, at the first American chess congress, held in New York, he easily defeated the best players that could be brought against him. In 1858 Morphy went to England and there defeated Lowenthal, Boden and Bird and performed the most astonishing feats in simultaneous games without the board. When he was in Paris, the same year, he won five out of eight games with Harrwitz and gave many exhibitions of blindfold playing. It was these last that were responsible for the early breakdown of his health.

After his return to the United States in 1859 he defeated the visiting German expert, Andersen, in seven out of eleven games. He was admitted to the bar and began to practice law in New Orleans. But the strain of his blindfold contests had been too great for his mind, and he was forced to give up chess altogether and then to abandon all mental occupation. He lived in retirement until his death in 1884. His activity thus covered a comparatively short space of time.

Morphy's skill is described as inexhaustible. He never was a close student of chess. He played his games easily and quickly, with no preparation and little hesitation. Yet his combinations were "remarkable for finesse, depth, elegance and soundness." He also possessed a phenomenal memory. —New York Times.

JAPAN'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

It Seems to Be Too Subtle For Occidental Minds to Master.

Japan was the first foreign country where I saw moving pictures shown. In Yokohama one whole street is given up to moving pictures—Theater street. Great banners hung clear across it with the picturesque Japanese alphabet rolling up and down them advertise the respective performances.

On the floor the audience sits, with their feet squarely turned under them, absorbed in the shifting shadows. The subtitles are in English, but so common is English coming to be in Japan that the meaning doesn't go over their heads. There is always some one to whisper the title's meaning.

American manufacturers have labored long and hard to find films that will amuse the Japanese, but their success has not been very marked. No white mind can fathom a Japanese's sense of humor. Our funniest films over there go flat. But in the midst of a death scene in some dramatic film they will suddenly begin to rock with merriment. There is a fortune in it for any one who will locate the Japanese bump of humor and manufacture plays that will hit it.

The Japanese are now manufacturing their own films, but they are not of much interest to white people, as nothing ever happens in them. There is no action. Half a reel may be given up to drinking a cup of tea. But this may be exceedingly funny to the Japanese, for there has been more going on than shows on the surface. By the way they lift their cups, by the way they swing their fan they are talking a message. Two Japanese can talk to each other with their fans while the white man standing alongside understands nothing of what they are saying. —World Outlook.

A King's Ransom.

The expression "worth a king's ransom," though generally supposed to mean the ransoms paid for a king, more probably refers to that paid to a king. In early times, when armies received practically no regular pay and the soldier's reward was the booty taken from the vanquished, each soldier had a right to the bodies as well as the goods of the prisoners he captured. The conqueror might say his prisoner, sell him to slavery or set him at liberty on payment of a ransom. But, though it was the common practice in feudal times for the individual captor to receive the ransom for prisoners of low degree, those for princes or great nobles were always paid to the king; hence a king's ransom.

Chameleon Snails.

The beaches of Snails Island, in the Gulf of Mexico, change color twice daily with the tides. The sands are really of a golden color, and when the rising tide spreads the wide beach still remains gold, but when the tide ebbs they look quite purple, and this is accounted for by myriads of tiny purple snails crawling in the wake of the ebbing tide. It is to these snails that the island owes its name.

Origin of Music.

The origin of music is lost in antiquity. Among civilized people it probably originated among the Egyptian priests, who employed this art in their religious rites and ceremonies. From the Egyptians the art passed on to the Greeks and Romans and so on to modern nations. —New York American.

WEATHER SCIENCE

It Is Good as Far as It Goes, but It Doesn't Go Far Enough.

SECRETS HIDDEN IN THE SUN.

Changes in Intensity and Quality of Solar Rays Cause Effects That Bother Meteorologists—Why Forecasts of Experts Often Go Astray.

The most imperfect science in meteorology. The margin of error in its calculations is sometimes enormous—sufficient to completely reverse a prediction.

The weather bureau is a useful institution, based upon an incomplete system of correlated facts of observation, which are scientific as far as they go. But there are elements concerned in the production of weather about which the methods of meteorology give no information.

There are birds, insects and four-footed animals which have an incomparably greater foreknowledge of weather changes than the entire scientific corps of the agricultural department possesses.

When the predictors of the weather bureau give warning of an approaching storm they act on very much the same principle as that on which a railroad time table is based. A train having been announced by telegraph as started on a given line will arrive in regular succession at certain points along that line, and a station agent at any given point can, if no accident intervenes, foretell the moment of the train's arrival at his station.

Storm centers, or cyclones, moving across the country are in some ways comparable to trains following a time schedule. But unfortunately they do not run on rails, they are not driven by an invariable force, they are subject to interruptions and obstacles of many kinds, and instead of always keeping the track and following the course they frequently wander vaguely about or take an unexpected turn or else fade away like exhausted whirls in water.

In fact, the weather bureau predictors are in the same quandary in which train dispatchers would find themselves if railroad tracks were shifting lines, continually drifting this way and that, getting crossed and entangled or sinking into suddenly formed quagmires and thus disappearing for good.

Meteorology as a science of weather prediction falls just because it possesses too few facts. With the aid of the telegraph the weather bureau can follow the trail of a storm center across the United States, but it cannot tell just how a new storm is born nor just when or where it will begin its course.

The one only great fact on which it bases its whole system of prediction is the general tendency of cyclonic disturbances in this country to travel eastward with a northerly trend, while storms originating around the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea usually come up the coast.

But the official weather prognosticators are as much in the dark as the ordinary citizen concerning what is going to happen in the atmosphere next week, and they really know nothing about any storm until after it has begun its career, and then all that they know is the course that it will take—in case it doesn't happen to change its mind.

A slight variation in the intensity, or quality, of the radiation received from the sun might account for sudden changes or abnormal weather, and recent investigations show that such variations occur, but what is needed is more accurate knowledge about them and their effects. Heat and light are only two of an infinite number of forms of vibration sent to us from the sun. Everybody knows that when the weather records show that two days are precisely alike in temperature, in humidity, etc., human nerves prove that they are vastly unlike in some unnamed peculiarity which affects the springs of life.

The spider busily and confidently spinning her webs in preparation for a spell of fine weather which some unerring mechanism of foreknowledge within her enables her to detect is a surer guide than a barometer. She responds to vibrations as yet only guessed at by science, and so perhaps do the supersensitive nerves of many human creatures. —Garrett P. Servis in New York Journal.

Glass Cups.

The first glass cups were made at Alexandria. Some were colored like Bohemian glass and decorated with glass paste, imitating precious stones and cameos. Some were opaque, others clear as crystal and still others formed of opaque layers welded together like the famous Portland case, in which the white upper layer had been cut away like a cameo, leaving a blue ground around the figure.

Watered.

"If you are looking for bargains," said the broker, "I can suit you. I can offer you some stocks at 10 cents a share."

"But why are they so cheap?" demanded the lady shopper.

"You see, they have been slightly damaged by water."

A Fitting Fine.

"There's a hard magistrate in that court."

"What did he do?"

"A couple brought before him were accused of spooning in the park, and he made them fork over." —Baltimore American.

Flag Raising at West Park.

A beautiful white pine pole, 46 feet in length, has been set up in the park of Ascension Church by men of the parish, and on Wednesday the rector, with about 40 of the neighbors, gathered for the flag-raising. Standing with the colors ready it was proposed that each one present pull the cord a few feet, whilst uttering some worthy sentiment. All joined in praise of Old Glory and allegiance to all that it represented. After the flag had touched the peak the Star Spangled Banner was sung by everyone, and after refreshments had been served all departed with words of love for the dear old flag. The sentiment of James Ackerly, who has attained the age of 90, is well worth preservation. "May this be a country to love the stars and stripes until the resurrection, and may Jesus give the Republic to hoist the flag as long as he leaves him on the earth."

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Nicodemus Cullop, a pitching hireling of Cap Huston and Col. Ruppert, is living up to predictions made for him by his Federal League boosters of days gone by.

Nick never amounted to an awful lot when he was heaving them from the portside in behalf of the Cleveland club. Some days he pitched good ball—and on other occasions the natives, after watching his efforts resorted to profanity.

When Nick hopped from O. B. into the waiting arms of the dirtiest of the residents of Ohio's fairest municipality regarded Nick's loss as nothing worthy of grief. But at that moment up rose George Stovall, who spoke thusly:

"Nick is just reaching his full development. Before the season of 1915 has skidded down along the valley of history, Nick will be regarded as a regular pitcher."

Cullop Silences Skeptics.
When the complete returns were in for the season, it was found that Nick had compiled a pitching average superior by far to that of any other southpaw in the Baltimore outfit.

"But that ain't nothing," exclaimed the skeptical. "Being the best left-hander among the Feds isn't worth getting excited about. That guy Cullop is just a good busher—that's all."

In due course of time, Nick became the property of the Yankees. It cost Huston and Ruppert something like $12,500 to acquire him, whereat, many, many persons ejaculated:

"Gold brick."

"The reason is a bit more than two months old. Nick has pitched his finger ring against the best clubs in the Johnson circuit and, in the majority of cases, has achieved victory. In short, Nick is looked upon right now as the best southpaw in the American League. And the 'gold brick' folks are strangely silent."

Chase Again in Hero Role.

Hal Chase undoubtedly is glad that Garry Herrmann was a bit harsh—and firm—with him when Hal decided he'd much rather play in the Pacific Coast League than with the Red Sox. Of course, no one can play with the Reds and be perfectly happy at the same time, but Hal is much more joyous than he hoped to be.

It was this way:
Harry Sinclair assumed the contract of Chase, and, after considerable dickering, sold the "Peerless First Sacker" to Garry Herrmann. When the sad, sad news was carried to Chase, he at once got in touch with Sinclair.

"Please, kind sir, do not add to the sorrows of my life by making me play in Cincinnati," pleaded Hal. "Let me go to the California League. If I will accept a cut of $2,000 per year, in my two year iron-clad contract."

"You don't belong to me any longer," answered Sinclair. "Speak to Herrmann."

Garry's Ultimatum.
Hal got in touch with Herrmann, rectified his piece and then listened while Garry said:

"You'll play in Cincinnati or nowhere."

Rather than be forced out of baseball, Chase decided to go to the Reds. His real objection of getting back into the majors was because he feared ridicule if he failed to deliver the goods. During recent years Chase achieved the unenviable honor of being the most panned man in baseball. Chase had stood as much of it as he could. He wanted to go some place—like California—where the knockers were fewer.

But, as you know, Chase joined the Reds—and he has become one of the idols of the town. His playing at home and abroad has been spectacular. He has hit them—and with considerable frequency. His fielding, both around first base and in the field has been brilliant.

Hal Chase expected he'd become a "foat" by going back into the majors. Instead, he has become something of a hero again.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

It availed the Yankees naught to tie up the score in the ninth. The Indians came along with the punch in the tenth.

Those one run beatings figured in six of the contests yesterday.

Those pesky Tigers are coming along strong. They are now in third place and in a position to leap into the runner-up position.

The Red Sox had the punch in the ninth. And just when the White Sox had the game clinched.

Washington had to turn some time, but too had they took a fall at the Browns just when Fielder had his men going good.

The Braves were held in check by the Pirates.

The Phillies and Dodgers refuse to let the other teams pull them down. Both won 2 to 1, the Reds and Cubs being on the short end.

Wuxtry! Wuxtry! The Giants won.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

This morning the senior's year book, "The Maroon," was placed on sale. The seniors expect that there will be a great demand and to stimulate this demand they have advertised a review of all the school's activities in the past year, and pages devoted to each of the four classes in school.

Prize Stories and Poems.

Following the custom of former years the graduating class have offered several prizes for the best poems and stories submitted by the high school students. A faculty committee were the judges and the winning manuscripts were printed in "The Maroon."

The first prize of two dollars and a half for the best poem was awarded to Helen F. Pennington, '17, and the second prize of one dollar for the second best poem was won by Olga Van Slyke Owens, '18. The titles of these poems were "The Spirit of Poetry" and "The Song of Spring."

The two dollar and a half prize for the best story was awarded to Douglas Brown, '17, whose story was entitled "Queer." Samuel Goldwasser of '16 was given the second prize for his story, "The Yawning of the Sands," and honorable mention was given Alice Scott, '17, whose topic was "Shakespeare and Marlowe."

Helpful Talk on Library Work.

As the best means of answering the numerous questions asked by students in regard to what vocations they should take up when they leave school, Principal Moulton has obtained several people who are specialists in their lines to discuss different lines of work with the pupils.

Yesterday the girls who cared to heard a very helpful and instructive discussion of library work given by Miss Rose. There seems to be a widespread demand for young women in this vocation and New York city especially is offering special inducements that make it possible for students to obtain the necessary preparation at very little expense to themselves.

Senior Minstrels.

The seniors hope to refill their depleted treasury this evening by giving a minstrel show, and have had little pity on the poor little freshmen who gave their opinions instead of their fifteen cents. The end men have all had go at the same. These black faced stars are Helen Wood, Ruth Humphrey, Ray Terwilliger and John Church. President Hasbrouck will also do his share as interlocutor. It is thought that the novel arrangement of having both boys and girls in the show, together with the inducement of dancing afterwards in the gymnasium will draw a good attendance.

Affection a Heavenly Gift.
How sacred, how beautiful, is the feeling of affection in pure and guileless bosoms! The proud may sneer at it, the fashionable may call it false, the selfish and dissipated may affect to despise it; but the holy passion is surely of heaven, and is made evil by the corruptions of those whom it was sent to bless and preserve—Mordant.
